Men and women often have different shopping habits, especially when it comes to their priorities and shopping strategies. Women tend to enjoy shopping for a wide variety of products, from clothes and accessories to home decor and beauty items. They may spend a longer time in stores, taking their time to look at different options, and are often willing to make comparisons before deciding. Shopping is often a fun activity for women, as they might enjoy browsing and spending time exploring new styles. On the other hand, many men view shopping as a task to be completed quickly and efficiently. They usually have a specific goal in mind and know what they need to buy before heading to the store. Men are less likely to shop for fun and more likely to purchase only the items they need. While they may shop for clothes or electronics, they often do so with a clear intention and are not as interested in browsing other products. Men may also prefer to shop alone, as it allows them to focus on their needs and complete their shopping faster.

Despite these differences, both men and women can be passionate shoppers in their own way. Whether it's a leisurely afternoon in a mall or a quick trip to buy something essential, shopping is an important part of daily life for both genders.

Question 31. What is the main difference in how men and women shop?

A. Women shop quickly, while men take their time

B. Women shop for fun and exploration, while men shop with a clear purpose

C. Men enjoy shopping more than women

D. Both men and women shop in exactly the same way

Question 32. How do many women approach shopping?

A. They shop for only one item at a time

B. They take their time to explore different options and compare products

C. They tend to shop alone without anyone else

D. They shop quickly without looking at many options

Question 33. Why do many men prefer to shop alone?

A. To enjoy the social experience of shopping

B. To spend time browsing and looking at different products

C. To compare items with friends or family

D. To focus on their needs and complete shopping more efficiently

Question 34. What can be said about the shopping habits of both men and women?

A. Both are passionate about shopping, but in different ways

B. Women prefer to shop quickly, while men take their time

C. Men and women both spend equal time browsing

D. Women dislike shopping, while men enjoy it
