Fill in a suitable preposition

One sunny morning, Jimmy was the house, reading a book, while Miguel was the porch, fixing his bike. Their dog Max sat Miguel, wagging his tail.

Suddenly, Max saw a squirrel the house and ran it! He jumped the fence, dashed the garden, and disappeared the bushes.

Jimmy and Miguel ran the house and looked the tree, but Max was not there. They looked the bench and two flowerpots. Still no Max!

They walked the path, climbed the hill, then went the other side. Just then, they saw Max some butterflies, running around happily.

He ran a tunnel and jumped a rock. Then he leaped the rock and sat a duck pond. The boys ran him and called his name.

Max barked and ran the pond the boys. He jumped Jimmy's arms and licked Miguel's face.

Together, they walked back the garden gnome, which stood the old oak tree, and returned home, happy and tired. Max curled up his blanket, which was placed the fireplace.
