Happy Tails, by Emma Trent

This summer I'm working at a rescue centre for dogs called Happy Tails. It's a charity that rescues dogs from the streets. I love dogs and there are lots of them that need our help. There are different ways to help: you can be a volunteer like me, you can give a home to a dog, or you can give money. Happy Tails needs money to buy food for the dogs and also when they need a vet.

Volunteers help at Happy Tails by giving food to the dogs and taking them for a walk. This summer, we're taking the dogs to the park every day so that they can run and play. Sometimes we learn new things like how to give first aid if a dog is injured.

My friends and I are meeting tomorrow to plan an event. We're having a fancy dress competition at the weekend and we're grilling burgers to sell. My class are selling tickets to the event after school and we're giving all the money we make to Happy Tails. I'm extremely excited.
