Comprehension: Italian Men Defy Global Cooking Statistic

Questions

1. What percentage of men do most or all of the cooking?
   a) 19%
   b) 46%
   c) 35%

2. How many men do not cook at all?
   a) 19%
   b) 46%
   c) 50%

3. How does Italy differ from other countries in terms of cooking habits?
   a) Italian men cook less than women, like in most countries.
   b) Italian men cook more than women, which is unique.
   c) Italians eat mostly fast food.

4. Who taught Ilario Tito how to cook?
   a) His parents
   b) His grandfather and grandmother
   c) He learned by watching TV shows

5. According to sociologist Emiliana Deblasio, why is food so important in Italy?
   a) It's a necessity, nothing more.
   b) It's a religion, culture, love, and a way to bring people together.
   c) It's important only for special occasions.

6. Why did Roberto join a cooking class?
   a) He wants to become a professional chef.
   b) He enjoys cooking and wants to learn more.
   c) His wife signed him up so he could cook dinner for them.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

7. How do Chiara and Riccardo share cooking responsibilities?
   a) Riccardo cooks because Chiara works late.
   b) Chiara cooks because Riccardo doesn't like it.
   c) They take turns cooking every night.

8. What change is happening in Italian households as more women work?
   a) More men are starting to cook.
   b) Families eat more fast food.
   c) Women cook even more to balance work and home.

9. According to Deblasio, what task do men still struggle with in the kitchen?
   a) Buying groceries
   b) Cleaning up after cooking
   c) Setting the table

10. At the end of the report, what does one journalist say about this trend?
    a) She thinks it would be great to have it in the U.S., but she prefers men to clean too.
    b) She believes American men already cook enough.
    c) She doesn't think cooking is important at all.

LIVEWORKSHEETS