24. Character traits are adjectives that describe the qualities of a character.

A character's traits are different from a character's feelings. Characters' feelings, or emotions, are a character's emotional response to things that happen around them. Unlike character traits, feelings may come and go quickly.

Read the following passage from a story.

Mercy snorted. She should have known better than to challenge Victoria. Of all Mercy's friends, Victoria talked loudest, ran fastest and took the most risks. She bragged about the time she convinced her older brothers to spend a weekend building her a fort. Mercy liked to call Victoria "Buster." "Because you are always busting things up," she laughed. Victoria wore the nickname with pride.

Based on the passage, which of the following is one of Victoria's traits?

- a) shy
b) bold
c) forgetful
d) confused

25. Direct characterization is when the author tells us directly what the characters are like. The author may state the character's traits: "Kareem was a polite, patient boy who always listened to his parents."

Which of the following is an example of direct characterization?

- a) Andy was rude and usually didn't think of other people's feelings.      b) Andy knew he got to the line late but decided to skip ahead anyways.
- c) "I got here first!" Andy growled at the small child waiting in front of him.      d) "Andy is such a jerk," his sister sighed.
26. In indirect characterization, the author does not come out and tell us what the character is like. Instead, the author shows the character's personality through things the character says, does, feels and thinks and the way other characters react to the character.

In the following passage from the book The Wonderful Wizard of Oz by L. Frank Baum, the character Dorothy is talking to another character, the Scarecrow.

Read the passage and then answer the question below.

"No, indeed. I don't know anything. You see, I am stuffed, so I have no brains at all," [the Scarecrow] answered sadly.

"Oh," said Dorothy, "I'm awfully sorry for you."

"Do you think," he asked, "if I go to the Emerald City with you, that Oz would give me some brains?"

"I cannot tell," she returned, "but you may come with me, if you like. If Oz will not give you any brains you will be no worse off than you are now."

Which detail from the passage best shows us that Dorothy is caring and kind?

- a) "Do you think," he asked, "if I go to the Emerald City with you, that Oz would give me some brains?"      b) "'I don't know anything. You see, I am stuffed, so I have no brains at all,' [the Scarecrow] answered sadly."
- c) "'I cannot tell,' she returned..."      d) "'Oh,'" said Dorothy, "'I'm awfully sorry for you.'"
