READING (10 MARKS)

L. Read the article about Jenny's trip. Then choose the correct answer.

Jenny enjoyed studying geography most at school. She liked history too, but because she didn't enjoy sports or science, she didn't like going to school very much. When Jenny was only 17 years old, her parents made a decision. They decided to take her around the world on a boat for a year. They decided to rent a sail boat with a kitchen and two comfortable beds. Jenny didn't take anything she didn't need. She put all of her clothes into a suitcase and all of her schoolbooks into her backpack. She didn't take her smartphone. Her parents knew that this was going to be the best lesson of her life. In the summer of 2015, Jenny and her family left home and sailed around the world.

Jenny visited lots of different countries that were in her school geography books. Her mom and dad took her to historical places like Rome, where she learned about the Romans while sitting in the Coliseum. And they went to Athens, where she learned all about the Greeks when they visited the Acropolis. Every evening, her mom told fascinating stories from a history book and talked about their day. Jenny also wrote an article about the interesting sounds and smells of each historical location, then emailed it to her classmates. What did she miss? She said she missed her home and her friends every day, but her school trip was the best experience.

1 What subjects didn't Jenny like?

- A geography and math
- B music and history
- C sports and science

2 How did the family travel around the world?
