IS ARTWORK IMPORTANT IN OUR HOMES?

There are days when you look around your home, particularly the walls, and can't help but feel like something is missing. That missing item is what we call an "artwork."

4.1.

It's no secret that artists are talented individuals who express beauty through paintings and sculptures. So, what better way to share in the goodness they release onto the world than by owning their masterpieces? Do you need proof? Try hanging some paintings on your walls to see how it makes them look, or place a sculpture on a stool in your room to be surprised at how much more attractive it becomes.

4.2.

Art is very expensive. Recently, we have seen auctions selling off artworks at prices that would make our jaws drop. Now imagine someone walks into your house and sees a beautiful painting on your wall. The person would immediately assume you are rich. In addition to perceived you as an upper-class member, the person would appreciate your taste level in selecting such artwork.

4.3.

We rise by lifting each other. As a society, we must help each other grow. One of the best ways to do this is by buying art from artists. To be honest, many artists are not appreciated enough. Buying their artworks is your way of telling them that the time, creativity, and resources that went into creating a piece aren't for nothing.

4.4.

Art is timeless. This means that, for generations to come, an artwork continues to be important. Many artworks of high value were created several decades ago. Their creators probably didn't suppose that their artwork would be worth millions. So maybe in a hundred years, the painting from a local artist will be worth as much as the Mona Lisa? It means no money problems for your children and grandchildren.

Tekst A

If you love bears, in all their wonderful shapes and sizes, then you'll love this beautiful new book by Katie Viggers. It's a non-fiction book with a lot of personality. The bears are categorised by their type, and there's a section for each. There are also sections on climbing, swimming, eating, running and hibernating, which are common to all. Each page has a balance between beautiful colour illustrations and factual text, as well as speech bubbles from the bears themselves!

Some of the illustrations are imaginary, such as the Brown Bears, who are illustrated with their yellow walking boots on, but these highlight the factual information in a way that children can relate to.

There's a small box on each page which compares the size of each bear, which is really useful when comparing each species.

PROMS

Proms are big news in Britain these days. A school prom is a formal party to celebrate an important date at school, such as the end of secondary school or completing school exams in Year 11 (aged 15–16) and in Year 13 (aged 17–18). A secondary school prom often involves a big party, big dresses and huge cars. Proms are held in June or July, around the end of exam time or the end of term. The idea is to have fun with your school friends and celebrate your time and achievements at school. Some schools hold a luxury party in a five-star hotel. Others have a more basic dinner in the school hall. The school can organise a prom or they can pay a professional organisation to arrange it. A prom organiser provides everything for the special event including the party location, balloons, food, music, cars and clothes.

Young people like to dress up for their prom. Many teenagers wear school uniforms in the UK but on prom night lots of girls swap their uniform for an elegant evening dress and high heels. Boys that are usually only seen in jeans and trainers when not at school dress up in a suit with a tie and smart shoes. The right hairstyle and make-up are important too. Some beauty salons offer a special 'prom deal', which includes hair, make-up, eyelashes, nails and a spray tan. A tan is fashionable with both boys and girls.

Arriving at your prom in chauffeur-driven limousine is very popular! Other young people like to travel by truck or in large 4x4 vehicles. The party can start on the way to the dinner or dance. Part of the fun for some prom-goers is to drive around town in their best clothes and make sure that everyone sees them. Two 16-year-old girls with a sense of humour arrived at their school prom in Somerset both dressed as Barbie. Did they arrive in a limo? No, they travelled in a more original style: their mothers made each girl a life-sized Barbie box and the friends arrived at the prom party in their boxes on the back of a trailer!

The school prom is big business. According to a recent newspaper report an average prom costs the parents over £200 per teenager. Many pay much, much more. The cost can include a ticket for the prom party (which is often a three-course dinner followed by dancing) but most money is spent on new clothes, shoes, a visit to the hairdressers, a spray tan and probably car hire.

Not all families have money to spend on their teenager's prom, of course. How do less wealthy pupils find a way to look good at the school prom? Some teenagers work part-time to cover their prom expenses. Popular jobs include babysitting, shop work and working as a waiter or waitress.
