Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

Europe is facing serious issues with the quality of its water. A recent report found that only about one-third of Europe's rivers, lakes, and other surface water are in good condition. In 2021, it was discovered that only 37% of Europe's surface water met good ecological standards, and 29% met good chemical standards. The results are far below the target the EU set for 2015, which was later extended to 2027. However, it now seems likely that Europe will miss this goal.

The report explains that pollution from farms and coal-fired power plants are major sources of water pollution. Farms use large amounts of water and release chemical pollutants into rivers and lakes. Power plants also produce toxic particles that harm water quality. Some areas in western and central Europe, including countries like Germany and the Netherlands, have a high number of polluted water bodies.

In addition to surface water, groundwater in Europe is also affected. However, the report found that Europe's groundwater is in slightly better condition, with 97% rated as having a good amount and 77% meeting good chemical standards.

Experts suggest several ways to improve water quality, including reducing water use, decreasing harmful pollutants, and restoring rivers and wetlands. Scientists warn that action is essential, especially as climate change leads to more extreme weather events, like floods. They believe that healthier water ecosystems can help reduce the impact of climate change on Europe.

31. What is the main idea of the text?

- A. Europe's groundwater has improved significantly over the past decade.
- B. Climate change has no effect on Europe's water quality.
- C. Europe has achieved poor water quality standards in most of its rivers and lakes.
- D. Europe is struggling with water quality issues due to pollution from farms and factories.

32. According to the text, how much of Europe's surface water met good ecological standards in 2021?
A. About a quarter B. Less than half C. Just over a third D. Almost all of it
33. According to the text, which factor contributes significantly to the pollution of Europe's water sources?
A. Waste disposal from all the areas in western and central Europe
B. Agricultural practices that consume water and add contaminants
C. Residential waste from heavily populated cities
D. Shutting down coal power plants
34. The word particles in paragraph 2 is CLOSEST in meaning to _____.
A. pollutants B. reactions C. workplaces D. objects
35. The word slightly in paragraph 3 is OPPOSITE in meaning to _____.
A. badly B. quickly C. greatly D. heavily
36. What do experts recommend to improve water quality in Europe?
A. Reviving natural waterways and reducing water consumption
