must	don't have to	mustn't	should	shouldn't

You were at your friend's house at the weekend having a sleepover. One of the other guests broke a vase. You saw who did it and you know they didn't tell your friend or his/her parents.

You played football in the park with your friends. The ball went into the lake. You went into the lake to get it back but now your clothes are wet and dirty. You know your parents will be angry.

You are organising a trip with friends. Your first meeting to discuss it is tomorrow. You haven't got much money so you know you can't do a lot of things, but you don't want to miss any of the fun.

You have got an English lesson this afternoon. You haven't done your homework. You know you'll get extra homework tonight but you've got a sports match after school. Then you're going to your grandma's after that because it's her birthday. You don't know when you can do all your homework.

You feel sick and you have a bad cold. Your arms and legs hurt.

You want to go to the cinema with your friends. There is a film on that you want to watch and it's the last night you can see it.

You are staying at your aunt's house for the week. Her family eat a lot of vegetables, fish and fruit, but you don't like them. You like meat, pasta, and puddings.

Not everyone has 20/20 vision or perfect eyesight, but we can use glass and plastic lenses to help us see better. People have known about lenses for a long time. In fact, Egyptian hieroglyphs from the [1]_____ BC show lenses, but we don't know how the Egyptians used them. But we do know that the Emperor Nero used an emerald to help him see gladiators fight between [2]_____-68 AD.

Experts think people started wearing glasses around [3]_____ in Italy. People wore them for short sight (when you can't see things far away) and for ageing sight, but they didn't know why they worked. Centuries later, in the [4]_____s, Johannes Kepler found out that artificial lenses corrected the way human lenses focus light on the retina.

Leonardo Da Vinci designed contact lenses in the [5]_____s. But no one made them. Three hundred years later, eye specialists tried to make contact lenses in the [6]_____s but they were too heavy to wear. The first light lenses appeared in the [7]_____s. However, they were expensive and broke easily. They also stopped oxygen getting to the eye.

Now you can buy very light, cheap lenses that allow air through the surface. As a result they have become very popular.

Although contact lenses are now popular, people still wear glasses. They are easy to use and they have become a fashion item like shoes or gloves. There are lots of different designs and colours to choose from. They have also become popular because some famous people wear them. This is good news because most of us need glasses at some time in our lives.
