

Ice Age Animals

One day, a walrus, a mammoth, and a sabre-toothed tiger met by the icy river.

The _____ was big and round. He had long white _____ that curved down from his mouth. His skin was thick, and he had flippers instead of legs. He liked to slide on the ice with his belly. His short _____ wiggled when he moved.

The _____ was even bigger! He looked like an elephant. He had a long, curly _____ that he used to grab grass and snow. His _____ were giant and curved. His body was _____, and he had a short, fuzzy _____.

The _____ was strong and fast. He had sharp _____ that stuck out like small swords. His paws were big, and his claws were sharp. He had a long _____ that helped him keep balance when he ran.

They were all very different, but they played together in the snow. The walrus made a slide, the mammoth made snowballs with his trunk, and the sabre-toothed tiger ran fast and made everyone laugh.

Even with their different bodies, they were good friends!
