Urban Explosion

5A

- In 1950, only one city in the world had more than ten million people—New York.
- By the year 2030, 60 percent of the world's population will live in cities.
- Many residents of large urban areas will face problems with housing, pollution (for example, of the air and water), and crime.

▲ In 2015, there will be 21 cities with a population of ten million or more.

☐ Before You Read

A. Discussion. Study the map and the information. Then answer the questions below.

1. What was the first city to have a population of more than ten million?
2. In 2015, how many cities will have ten million people or more? Where will most of these cities be? What will be three of the largest cities?
3. What issues will people in these large cities face?

B. Predict. What can we do about the problems of city life? List two ideas. Then read the passage. Are any of your ideas mentioned?

City Challenges

1 Worldwide, cities gain a million people a week. This kind of growth brings
5 problems, and today many of the world's largest cities face similar challenges: high housing costs,
10 pollution, and crime (to name a few). What are some urban planners doing to fix these problems and improve people's lives?

▲ São Paulo, Brazil. Worldwide, cities grow by a million people a week.

Hyderabad, India (population: more than five million)

To improve residents' lives, Hyderabad is planting
15 trees and parks. The city is even creating "greener" buildings that use less water and less electricity for power. Adding green to a city has a number of advantages. For example, trees remove pollution from the air and make it cleaner. In Hyderabad,
20 streets were gray and ugly a few years ago. Today, they are filled with trees and flowers, making the city cleaner and more colorful. Green areas also give people places to relax or exercise and walk. A study in the U.S. showed something else interesting: the 25 greener a neighborhood[1] is, the less crime there is against people and property—especially buildings and cars.

▲ In the city of Hyderabad, an old factory is now an urban park.

São Paulo, Brazil (population: more than eighteen million)

Many people work in the center of São Paulo, but they don't live there. They've spread out to neighborhoods outside the 30 city, where housing is cheaper. Every day, these people travel into the city, and traffic is very heavy. Urban planners are using different strategies to address this issue. First, they are building better subways.[2] Another goal is to make it cheaper for people to live in the downtown area. Doing this will shorten the 35 distance people travel for work and reduce traffic and pollution in the city.

[1] A neighborhood is one of the parts of a city where people live.
[2] A subway is an underground railroad. It is a type of public transportation in a city.

1 | The Global Cities Index

"New York City is a star—the city of cities," wrote author John Gunther.
But why is New York—or London, Paris, or Tokyo—a great city? To answer this question, the creators of the Global Cities Index looked at five factors:
5 business, people, media, entertainment, and politics.

Factor	What It Measures
Business	How many global companies are in the city? Does the city do a lot of international business?
People	Does the city attract talented[1] people from around the world? Are the city's universities good? How many residents have college degrees?
Media	Is it easy to get news and information from different sources (TV, radio, Internet)? How many residents have Internet access?
Entertainment	Does the city have many entertainment options: museums, sports, music, and different types of restaurants?
Politics	How many embassies[2] and international organizations[3] are in the city?

1 A talented person has special skills and can do something well.
2 An embassy is a government building where officials from a foreign country work.
3 An organization is a group of people. The members of an organization work together for a certain reason.

Future Leaders

As the chart on pages 64–65 shows, most cities on the Global Cities Index are strong in certain areas. Seoul's strength, for example, is business (it gets over five money icons), while Los Angeles's strength

10 is people. New York, London, Paris, and Tokyo are at the top because they are strong in all five areas.

Which cities will be more powerful in the future? Creators of the Global Cities Index predict the most growth in the following areas:

- Asia: In China, cities such as Beijing and Shanghai will grow,

15 especially in the area of business. In ten years, they may be as powerful as New York or Tokyo. Indian cities such as Mumbai and New Delhi also have a lot of business potential.

- South America: Rio de Janeiro and São Paulo in Brazil, and Bogotá in Colombia, will be more powerful. In these cities, the middle 20 class[4] is growing, and life for many is improving.

- The Middle East: Istanbul and Ankara in Turkey, and Cairo in Egypt, will have more influence in international business and politics—especially in helping East and West work together.

In ten years, the top four cities on the index may be different, but 25 one thing is certain. With over 50 percent of the world's population now living in urban areas, tomorrow's global cities will be more powerful than ever.

4 The middle class is a category of people. They earn more than the working class but less than the upper class. It includes professionals and business people.

DUBAI: THEN AND NOW

1 Dubai is like no other place on Earth. It is the world capital of living large—a city of big business, luxury[1] hotels, skyscrapers, and huge shopping malls. In the early 20th century, Dubai was a
5 successful trading port. People from all over the world stopped in Dubai to do business. But it was still a small city, and most people lived as fishermen, merchants, or by raising animals. Then in 1966, oil was discovered. In time, this
10 brought a lot of money into the region, and soon Dubai began to change.

Today Dubai is one of the world's most influential business centers. In fact, each year most of the city's annual earnings come from business, not oil.
15 The city is also a global trading port.

Recently Dubai has become a popular spot for tourists. People from abroad come to relax on its beaches, and every year, millions visit just to go shopping!

Dubai is also one of the world's fastest growing cities.
20 Construction is everywhere. Buildings (some of the tallest on Earth) are built in months. The city also has a number of man-made islands. One of these, the Palm Jumeirah, is shaped like a palm tree and is particularly beautiful.
The city is still an amazing mix of people from different
25 backgrounds. Individuals from 150 countries live and work in Dubai, and foreigners now outnumber[2] Dubai natives eight to one!

Did You Know?
Dubai has more shopping malls per person than any other city in the world.

Many people welcome the city's growth. But an increasing number of Dubai natives have concerns[3] about the speed of 30 change. As Mohammad Al Abbar, a Dubai businessman, says, "We must always remember where we came from. Our kids must know we worked very, very hard to get where we are now, and there's a lot more work to do."

[1] Luxury is very great comfort, especially relating to beautiful and expensive things.
[2] If one group of people outnumbers another, the first group has more people than the second group.
[3] A concern is a worry about a situation.
