House sharing

Sharing a house or flat while studying away from home is an experience I would recommend to anyone. It teaches you (0) HIGHLY important life skills and can be great fun! But living together successfully is (1) _____ and it's important that everyone does their fair share of the housework. When I first shared a house with two friends, we loved the (2) _____, but we were rather (3) _____ to begin with and didn't really make any (4) _____ about who should tidy, clean or wash up. We were also very (5) _____ and had lots of friends drop by and had parties whenever we felt like it. However, the need to be (6) _____ hit us pretty soon. We then sorted out a system whereby we took turns at cooking and cleaning, even organising our rubbish into different containers. Surprisingly, this actually helped to (7) _____ our relationship. We became more of a team and our house-sharing days turned out to be more (8) _____.
