

What Do You See?

I see a panda. The panda sees a bear.

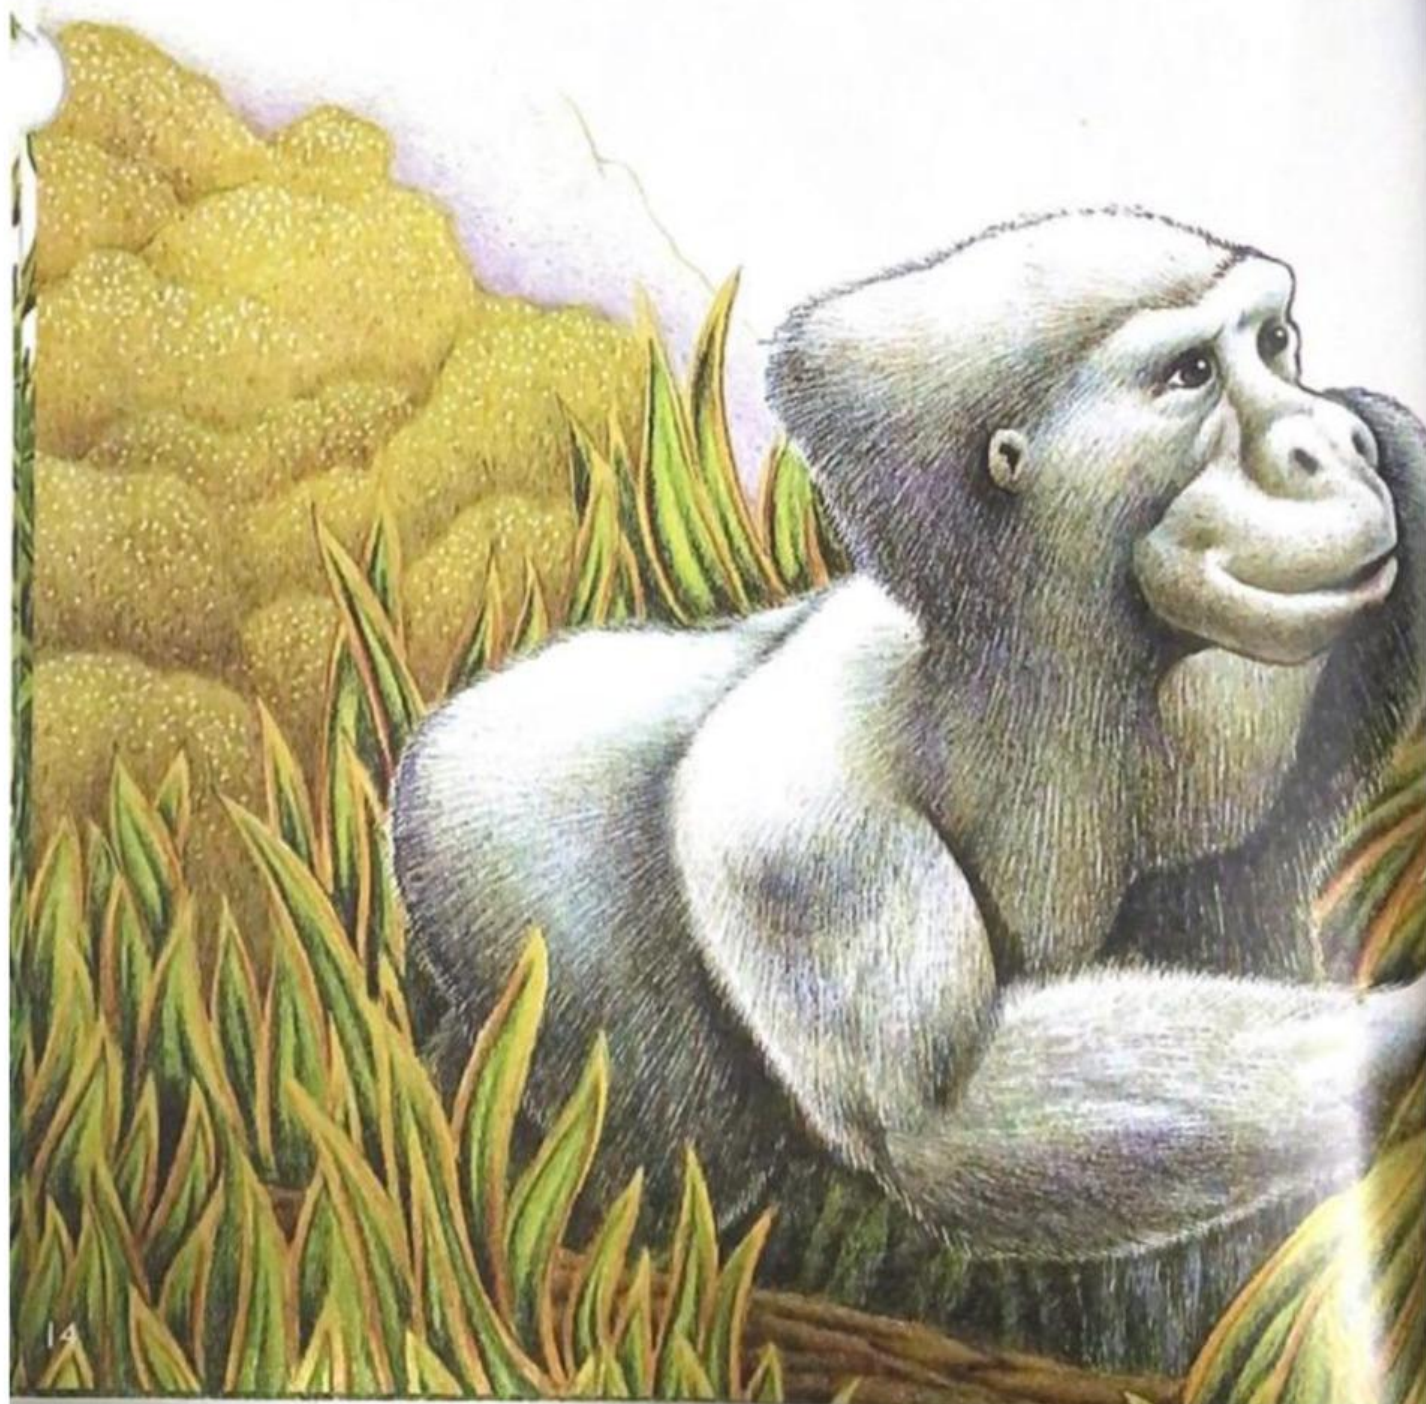

A detailed illustration of a giant panda sitting in a field of tall green grass. The panda is shown in profile, facing right, with its head slightly turned. It has black and white fur, black eye patches, and black ears. Its black-furred paws are visible, with white claws. The panda is holding a green bamboo leaf in its mouth. In the background, there is a light-colored, rocky hillside. The overall style is that of a children's book illustration, with soft colors and clear lines.

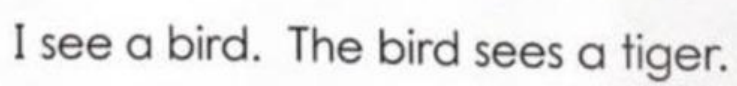

I see a bear. The bear sees a gorilla.

I see a gorilla. The gorilla sees a bird.

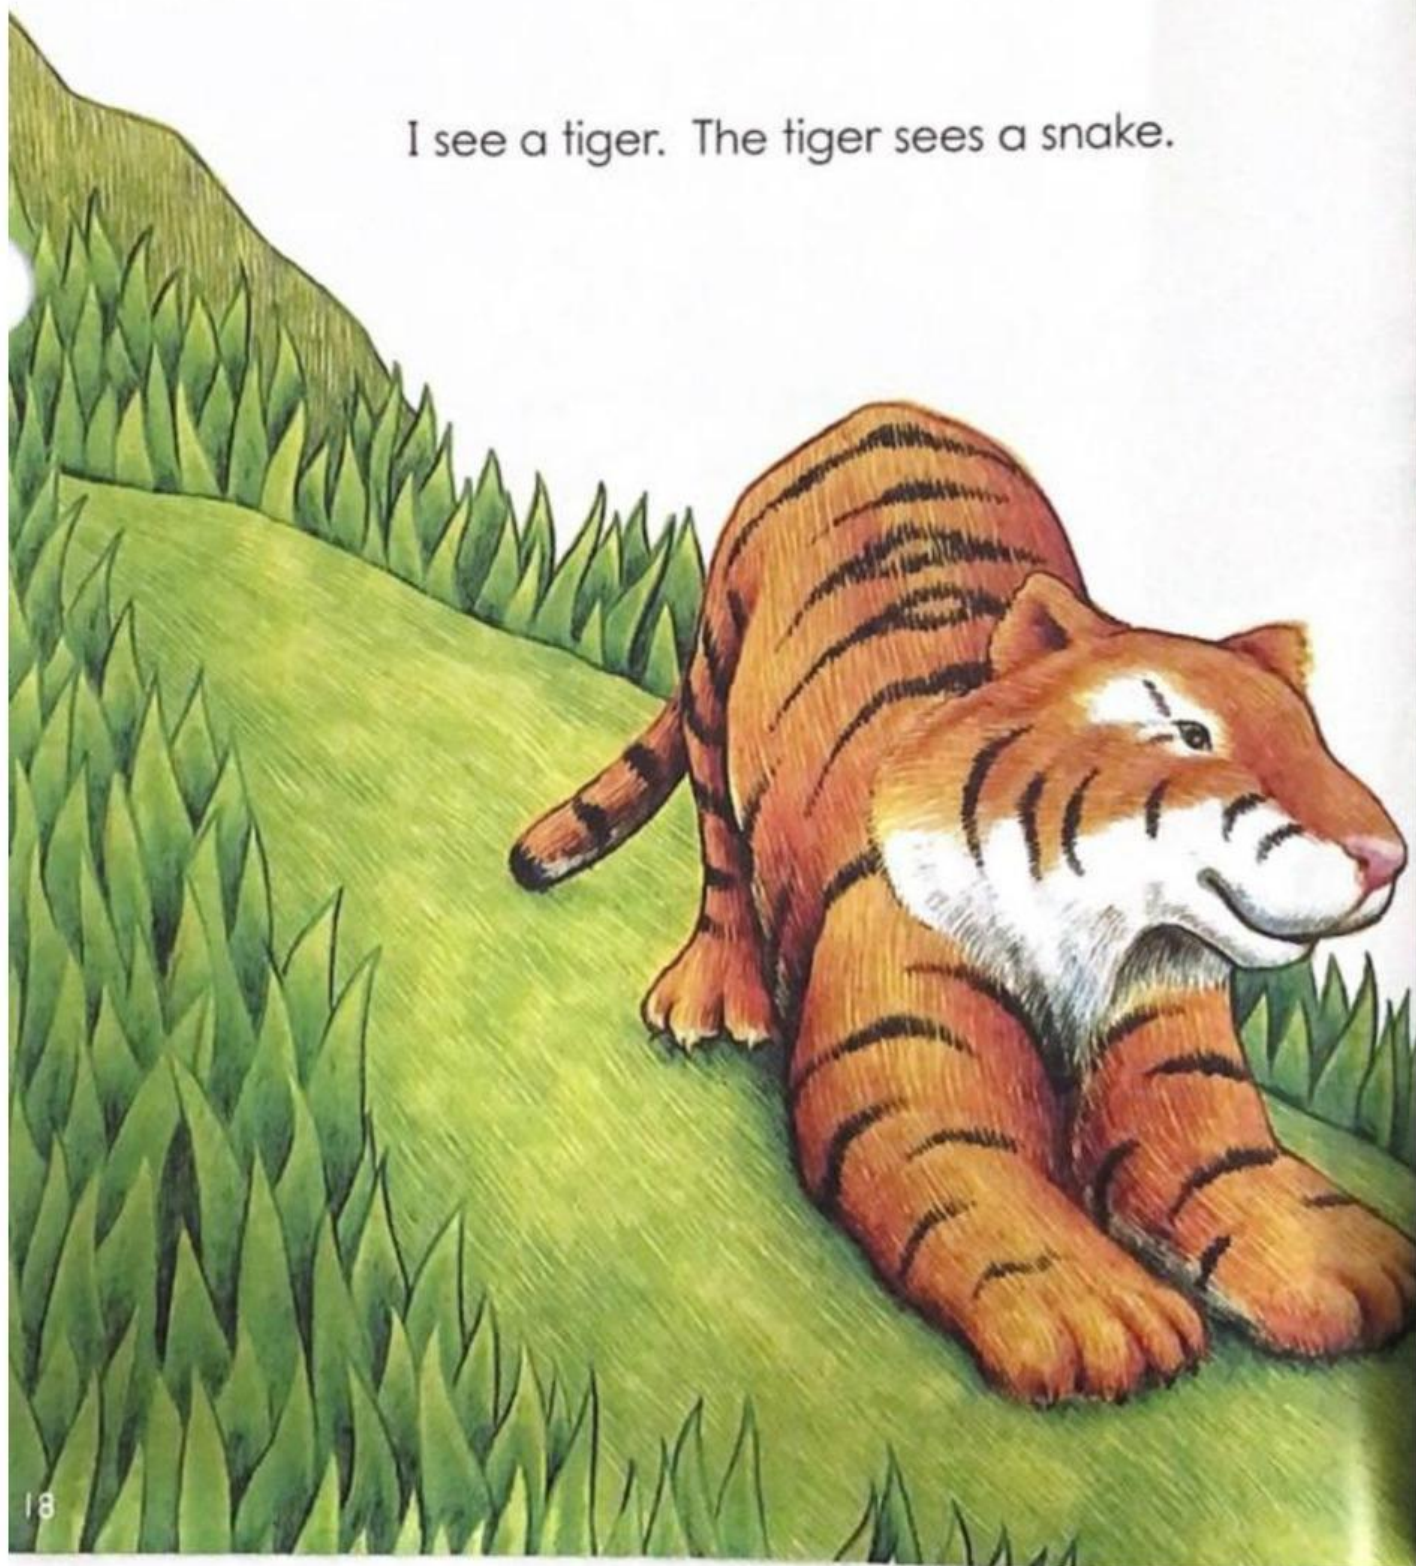

The tiger is running in the grass.

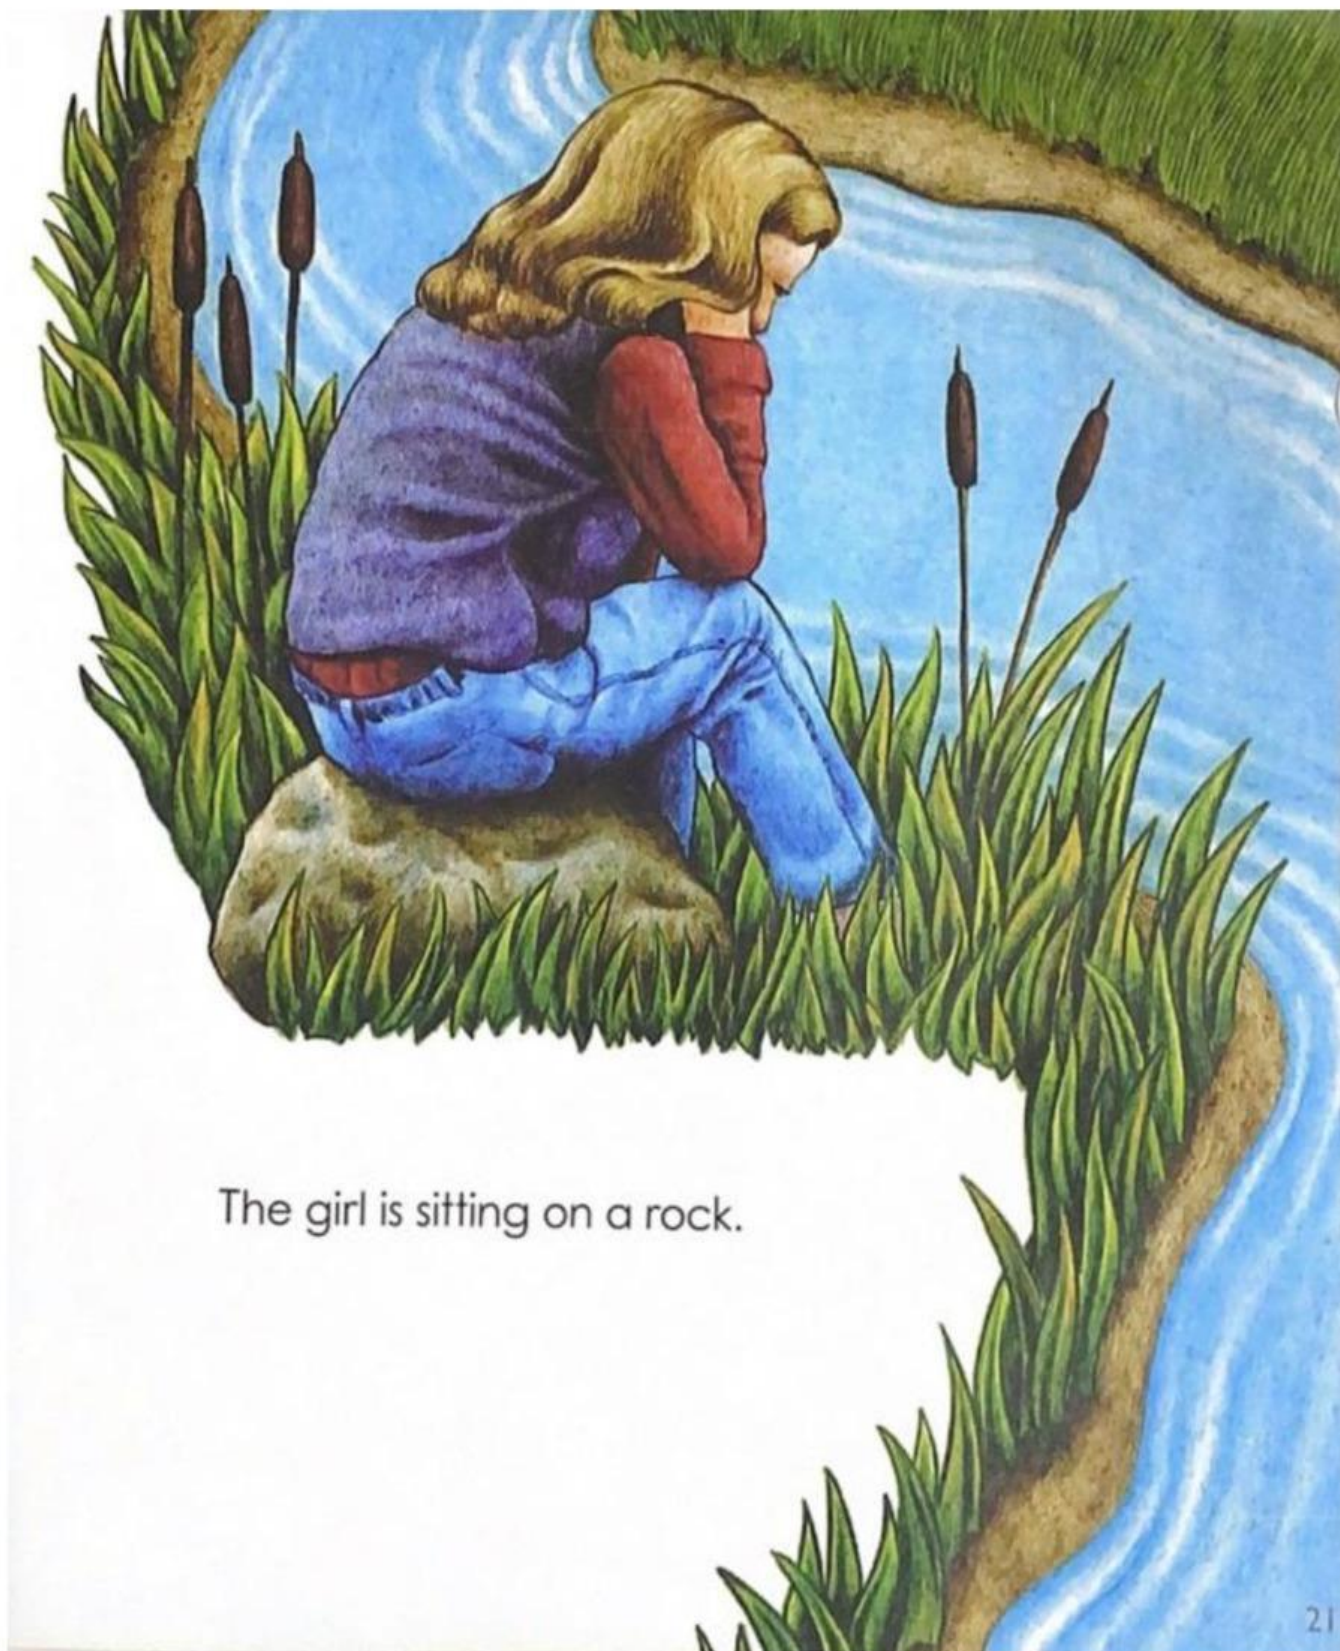

A detailed illustration of a tiger running through a field of tall green grass. The tiger is depicted in profile, moving from left to right, with its head turned slightly back. It has orange fur with dark brown stripes and a white underbelly. The background is a bright, hazy landscape with a white sky and a distant, low horizon line. The overall style is soft and painterly.

I see a tiger. The tiger sees a snake.

I see a snake. The snake sees a girl.

A blue snake with yellow eyes is coiled in green grass. The snake's body is covered in blue scales, and its head is raised, looking towards the right. The grass is green and pointed, surrounding the snake.

The girl is sitting on a rock.

Little girl, little girl, what do you see?
I see a girl looking back at me!

A watercolor illustration of a young girl lying on her stomach on a grassy bank next to a pond. She is wearing a blue dress and white shoes with pink laces. She is looking back over her right shoulder towards the viewer. In the foreground, there are several tall, thin reeds with brown seed pods. The pond is a light blue color with some white highlights. The background is a soft, hazy landscape with more greenery and a small body of water in the distance. The overall style is soft and painterly.
