Loread up on	Phrasal Verbs: read to read upon to read over/through to read for to read for to read of a character in the book, play, etc, of to read for a particular purposes to read of about a subject to find out information about it. to read out to read items for a list or ascreen to read set about a subject for find out information about it. to read off 2. Choose the correct preposition for the phrasal verbs 1) You shouldn't read this article too much. It isn't so deep. A) into B for C) back 2) Harry wanted to read the role of Sir Montgomery. A) over B) back 3) My mother read all her purchases from the notes. A) off B) bowe 3) My mother read all her purchases from the notes. A) off B) over C) off 5) lamic read in his poem to all of us. B) over C) off 5) lamic read in his poem to all of us. B) over C) off 5) lamic read in his poem to all on this subject. A) up on B) of C) out 7) Make sure you have read your work before handing it in. A) on B) out C) over 8) We usually read books entertainment, not for education. A) through B) for C) out 9) We decided to read the history of this town before a trip. A) for B) up on C) back 1) Blord C) out 1) Before going to the supermarket, I read all the items again. A) up on B) for C) out 9) Before going to the supermarket, I read all the items again. A) up on B) for C) off 5. Bank read his poem in front of so many people. 3. James read all the inems again has people. 5. She is a fraid to read perport. Do you want me to read it wo you? 7. You should read your analysis before submitting it. 8. She will read this book the relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected. 5. She read this book the relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected. 5. She read this book the relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected. 5. She read this book the relaxation, but it happened to read over/through to read over/through to read back to read for to read for to read for to read out to read off	to read up on to read back to read for to read for to read out to read of book, play, etc, of to read for a particular purpose to read out to read out about a subject to find out information about it. It can be beginning to the end, usually, to read out a subject out he beginning to the end, usually, to read out a subject out he read out he read out a bout a subject out he read out a bout a subject out of read out a lot on this subject. A) up B) of C) out 7) Make sure you have read your work before handing it in. A) on B) out C) over 8) We usually read books entertainment, not for education. B) for C) out 7) We decided to read the history of this town before a trip. A) for B) up on C) back 10) Before going to the supermarket, I read all the items again. B) for C) off 3. Fill in the missing parts of the sentences with the prepositions "up on", 'out", 'over', 'through', 'off', 'back', 'into' or 'for' 1. Don't read into this movie so much. It's just a waste of time. 2. She is afraid to read before submitting it. 8. She will rea	to read into	to read something so that other people could hear
to read for to read for to read a lot about a subject to find out information about it. to read off to read a lot about a subject to find out information about it. to read off to read a lot about a subject to find out information about it. to read off to read a lot about a subject to find out information about it. to read off to read a lot about a subject to find out information about it. to read off to read a lot about a subject to find out information about it. to read off to read a lot about a subject to find out information about it. to read off to read a lot about a subject to find out information about it. to read off to read a lot about a subject to find out information about it. to read off to read a lot about a subject to find out information about it. to read off to read off to read off to read something from the beginning to the end, usually, to look for mistakes or check details. C) back 2) Harry wanted to read	to read over/through to read out to read out to read off 10 read items for a list or a screen 10 read something from the beginning to the end, usually, to look for mistakes or check details. 2. Choose the correct preposition for the phrasal verbs 1) You shouldn't read	to read back to read off to read something from the beginning to the end, usually, to look for mistakes or check details. 2. Choose the correct preposition for the phrasal verbs 1) You shouldn't read this article too much. It isn't so deep. A) into B) for	to read for
to look for mistakes or check details. 2. Choose the correct preposition for the phrasal verbs 1) You shouldn't read this article too much. It isn't so deep. A) into B) for C) back 2) Harry wanted to read the role of Sir Montgomery. A) over B) back C) for 3) My mother read all her purchases from the notes. A) off B) for C) up on 4) Idon't think I have written numbers correctly. Can I read them to you? A) back	to read out	to read items for a list or a screen
1) You shouldn't read this article too much. It isn't so deep A) into B) for C) back 2) Harry wanted to read the role of Sir Montgomery A) over B) back C) for	to read off
A) into B) for C) back 2) Harry wanted to read the role of Sir Montgomery. A) over B) back C) for 3) My mother read all her purchases from the notes. A) off B) for C) up on 4) Idon't think! have written numbers correctly. Can I read them to you? A) back B) over C) off 5) Jamie read his poem to all of us. A) through B) out C) off 6) Before starting her research, she read al to no this subject. A) up B) off C) out 7) Make sure you have read your work before handing it in. A) on B) out C) over 8) We usually read books entertainment, not for education. A) through B) for C) out 9) We decided to read the history of this town before a trip. A) for B) up on C) back 10) Before going to the supermarket, I read all the items again. A) up on B) for C) off 3. Fill in the missing parts of the sentences with the prepositions "up on", "out", "over", "through", "off", "back", "into" or "for" 1. Don't read into this movie so much. It's just a waste of time. 2. She is afraid to read her poems in front of so many people. 3. James read all the names of the students and their results from his laptop. 4. I have read this book relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected. 5. She read our professor's previous works before taking up his course. 6. I have written down your report. Do you want me to read it to you? 7. You should read your analysis before submitting it. 8. She will read the role of Lady Mary in the upcoming play. 9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.	2. Choose the correct preposition for the phrasal verbs
A) over 3) My mother read all her purchases from the notes. A) off 4) I don't think I have written numbers correctly. Can I read them to you? A) back B) over C) off 5) Jamie read his poem to all of us. A) through B) out C) off 6) Before starting her research, she read a lot on this subject. A) up B) off C) out 7) Make sure you have read your work before handing it in. A) on B) out C) over 8) We usually read books entertainment, not for education. A) through B) for C) out 9) We decided to read the history of his town before a trip. A) for B) up on C) back 10) Before going to the supermarket, I read all the items again. A) up on B) for C) off 3. Fill in the missing parts of the sentences with the prepositions "up on", "out", "over", "through", "off", "back", "into" or "for" 1. Don't read into this movie so much. It's just a waste of time. 2. She is afraid to read her poems in front of so many people. 3. James read all the names of the students and their results from his laptop. 4. I have read this book relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected. 5. She read our professor's previous works before taking up his course. 6. I have written down your report. Do you want me to read it to you? 7. You should read you want me to read it to you? 7. You should read you want me to read it to you? 9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.		C) back
A) off 4) I don't think I have written numbers correctly. Can I read them to you? A) back		C) for
A) back B) over C) off 5) Jamie read his poem to all of us. A) through B) out C) out 7) Make sure you have read your work before handing it in. A) on B) out C) over 8) We usually read books entertainment, not for education. A) through B) for C) out 9) We decided to read the history of this town before a trip. A) for B) up on C) back 10) Before going to the supermarket, I read all the items again. A) up on B) for C) off 3. Fill in the missing parts of the sentences with the prepositions "up on", "out", "over", "through", "off", "back", "into" or "for" 1. Don't read into this movie so much. It's just a waste of time. 2. She is afraid to read all the names of the students and their results from his laptop. 4. I have read this book relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected. 5. She read our professor's previous works before taking up his course. 6. I have written down your report. Do you want me to read it to you? 7. You should read your analysis before submitting it. 8. She will read the role of Lady Mary in the upcoming play. 9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.		C) up on
A) through (b) Before starting her research, she read a lot on this subject. (c) Out (d) A) up
A) up B) off C) out 7) Make sure you have read		C) off
B) out C) over 8) We usually read books entertainment, not for education. A) through B) for C) out 9) We decided to read the history of this town before a trip. B) upon C) back 10) Before going to the supermarket, I read all the items again. A) up on B) for C) off 3. Fill in the missing parts of the sentences with the prepositions "up on", "out", "over", "through", "off", "back", "into" or "for" 1. Don't read into this movie so much. It's just a waste of time. 2. She is afraid to read all the names of the students and their results from his laptop. 4. I have read this book relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected. 5. She read our professor's previous works before taking up his course. 6. I have written down your report. Do you want me to read it to you? 7. You should read your analysis before submitting it. 8. She will read the note of Lady Mary in the upcoming play. 9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.
8) We usually read booksentertainment, not for education. A) through B) for C) out 9) We decided to read the history of this town before a trip. A) for B) up on C) back 10) Before going to the supermarket, I read all the items again. A) up on B) for C) off 3. Fill in the missing parts of the sentences with the prepositions "up on", "out", "over", "through", "off", "back", "into" or "for" 1. Don't read into this movie so much. It's just a waste of time. 2. She is afraid to read her poems in front of so many people. 3. James read all the names of the students and their results from his laptop. 4. I have read this book relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected. 5. She read our professor's previous works before taking up his course. 6. I have written down your report. Do you want me to read it to you? 7. You should read your analysis before submitting it. 8. She will read the role of Lady Mary in the upcoming play. 9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.	7) Make sure you have read your work before handing it in.
A) through B) for C) out 9) We decided to read the history of this town before a trip. A) for B) up on C) back 10) Before going to the supermarket, I read all the items again. A) up on B) for C) off 3. Fill in the missing parts of the sentences with the prepositions "up on", "out", "over", "through", "off", "back", "into" or "for" 1. Don't read into this movie so much. It's just a waste of time. 2. She is afraid to read her poems in front of so many people. 3. James read all the names of the students and their results from his laptop. 4. I have read this book relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected. 5. She read our professor's previous works before taking up his course. 6. I have written down your report. Do you want me to read it to you? 7. You should read your analysis before submitting it. 8. She will read the receipt.	A) on B) out	C) over
A) for B) up on C) back 10) Before going to the supermarket, I read all the items again. A) up on B) for C) off 3. Fill in the missing parts of the sentences with the prepositions "up on", "out", "over", "through", "off", "back", "into" or "for" 1. Don't read into this movie so much. It's just a waste of time. 2. She is afraid to read her poems in front of so many people. 3. James read all the names of the students and their results from his laptop. 4. I have read this book relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected. 5. She read our professor's previous works before taking up his course. 6. I have written down your report. Do you want me to read it to you? 7. You should read your analysis before submitting it. 8. She will read the role of Lady Mary in the upcoming play. 9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.		The state of the s
A) up on B) for C) off 3. Fill in the missing parts of the sentences with the prepositions "up on", "out", "over", "through", "off", "back", "into" or "for" 1. Don't read into this movie so much. It's just a waste of time. 2. She is afraid to read
1. Don't read into this movie so much. It's just a waste of time. 2. She is afraid to read		SECURIO CONTRACTOR CON
2. She is afraid to read her poems in front of so many people. 3. James read all the names of the students and their results from his laptop. 4. I have read this book relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected. 5. She read our professor's previous works before taking up his course. 6. I have written down your report. Do you want me to read it to you? 7. You should read your analysis before submitting it. 8. She will read the role of Lady Mary in the upcoming play. 9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.
3. James read all the names of the students and their results from his laptop. 4. I have read this book relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected. 5. She read our professor's previous works before taking up his course. 6. I have written down your report. Do you want me to read it you? 7. You should read your analysis before submitting it. 8. She will read the role of Lady Mary in the upcoming play. 9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.	1. Don't read into this movie so much. It's just a waste of time.
4. I have read this book relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected. 5. She read our professor's previous works before taking up his course. 6. I have written down your report. Do you want me to read it you? 7. You should read your analysis before submitting it. 8. She will read the role of Lady Mary in the upcoming play. 9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.	2. She is afraid to read her poems in front of so many people.
5. She read our professor's previous works before taking up his course. 6. I have written down your report. Do you want me to read it to you? 7. You should read your analysis before submitting it. 8. She will read the role of Lady Mary in the upcoming play. 9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.
6. I have written down your report. Do you want me to read it to you? 7. You should read your analysis before submitting it. 8. She will read the role of Lady Mary in the upcoming play. 9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.	4. I have read this book relaxation, but it happened to be far more interesting than I expected.
7. You should read your analysis before submitting it. 8. She will read the role of Lady Mary in the upcoming play. 9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.
8. She will read the role of Lady Mary in the upcoming play. 9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.	6. I have written down your report. Do you want me to read it to you?
9. We were mildly surprised when our friend read the number of ordered dishes from the receipt.
	8. She will read the role of Lady Mary in the upcoming play.
10. Why are you reading
	10. Why are you reading this letter? There isn't any secret message.

LIVEWORKSHEETS