Malaysia, My New Home

My family had just moved to Kuala Lumpur a few weeks ago when my father accepted a new job. On the first few days after our arrival, we were quite uncomfortable with the hot weather. (1) _____

I was enrolled into an international school where English Language was used as the medium. I felt quite nervous on the first day that I went to school. (2) _____ By the end of the day, I did not feel awkward anymore as all my classmates were very friendly. I sat next to a Britney, a girl from New Zealand who had been in this country for almost two years. (3) _____ She and other friends would show me around and assured me that I would love to be here.

The first weekend, Britney and two other Malaysians girls, Geetha and Aisya introduced me to some of the local food. They ordered nasi lemak, roti canai and fried noodles. However, I preferred the roti canai more than nasi lemak because I could not eat the hot 'sambal'. Aisya told me to expect to see other local dishes that I should try. (4) _____

A fortnight later, Aisya invited us, all her classmates to her house. (5) _____ I was quite surprised to see all the different kinds of food. There were 'lemang', 'rendang' and 'ketupat' which I learnt were the delicacies usually served on Hari Raya. There were also curry noodles, local cakes as well as cakes and biscuits. (6) _____ As a result, I had so much to eat.

After a year living in Malaysia, my family and I have adjusted ourselves to the life in the country. I should be grateful to all my classmates for helping me to adapt to my new environment.

- A The sun was so prickly, all throughout the day.
- B All the food looked delicious that I could not resist the temptation.
- C She was having an open house for the Hari Raya, a festival celebrated by the Muslims.
- D Britney told me about the numerous things I have to learn here.
- E I calmed down when I was warmly welcomed by everyone in the class.
- F The noodles were quite delicious.
- G She told me not to worry.
- H We hated going out of the house but we got used to it.
