Volunteering

Lara is a student from Spain, and she was accepted into a program that sent volunteers to Palestine. She worked in a community center in Ramallah, where English and art classes were offered to children. Even though life in the city was difficult, kindness was always shown and support was always given.

From this experience she learned something important: if children feel safe, they learn better. She also saw that if something breaks, people fix it and if someone needs help, people help.

Lara understood more about the world. She realized that if people see how Palestinians live, they understand more. She believed that if local people speak, change happens.

This experience changed her future. Lara decided to become a lawyer. She believed that if peace starts with education, a better future is built. Her dream became clear: to defend children and women in many places around the world.
