

STUDENTS'S WORKSHEET FOR 9 GRADE

A long time ago, in the land of Java, there lived a widow called Mbok Rondo. She had four daughters. The first three daughters were Klenting Abang, Klenting Ijo, and Klenting Biru. They were lazy, arrogant, and often treated their youngest sister badly. The youngest one was Klenting Kuning. She was kind, diligent, and humble.

In another place, there lived a handsome young man named Ande Ande Lumut. He was searching for a wife. Many girls in the village wanted to marry him, because he was rich and noble. Ande Ande Lumut, however, had one condition: he only wanted a wife who was honest and pure of heart.

One day, the king announced that Ande Ande Lumut was looking for a bride. All the girls, including Klenting Abang, Klenting Ijo, and Klenting Biru, prepared themselves beautifully. They wanted to look perfect in front of him. Klenting Kuning also wanted to come, but her stepsisters tried to stop her. Still, with her simple clothes, she decided to join them.

On the way, they had to cross a wide river. A giant crab named Yuyu Kangkang guarded the river. He offered to carry them across, but he demanded a kiss in return. Klenting Abang, Klenting Ijo, and Klenting Biru agreed and let him kiss them. But Klenting Kuning refused. She preferred to cross the river by herself, even though it was difficult.

When they arrived at Ande Ande Lumut's house, the three stepsisters went first. But Ande Ande Lumut rejected them. He said that he knew they had been kissed by Yuyu Kangkang, so they were not pure anymore. Finally, Klenting Kuning came. She was simple and humble, but she had kept her dignity and honesty.

Ande Ande Lumut chose Klenting Kuning as his bride. The stepsisters felt jealous, but they could not do anything.

From then on, Klenting Kuning lived happily with Ande Ande Lumut.
