In a busy town, a girl named Lily loved technology. She often used her computer, typing on the keyboard and moving the mouse to play games. One day, she wanted to send a letter to her friend, but she couldn't find a stamp. Instead, she decided to send an email.

"What should I write?" she wondered. When she finished, she made a face, unsure if it was good enough. Later, she called her friend on her mobile phone to tell a story about her day.

After that, Lily practiced hard for her upcoming race so she could win. She also made a sandwich for lunch and tied her shoelace before heading out. With her CD player playing music, she felt ready for anything the day could bring!
