COMPREHENSIVE READING

A Weekend in Cambridge

Last weekend, Sophie and Ethan visited Cambridge for a short trip. They arrived on Saturday morning, and the city was busy with tourists and students riding bicycles.

Their first stop was King's College, where they admired the chapel and its beautiful stained glass windows. Afterward, they walked to a nearby café and had lunch. Sophie tried a traditional English pie, and Ethan had fish and chips.

In the afternoon, they went punting on the river. They rented a small boat and took turns pushing it along the water, enjoying views of the city's historic buildings. Later, they visited the Fitzwilliam Museum and saw paintings, sculptures, and ancient artifacts

On Sunday, the weather was cloudy and windy, so they joined a guided walking tour. They visited several old colleges, learned interesting facts about Cambridge's history, and ended the tour in the botanic gardens.

UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE

By late afternoon, they returned home, feeling that the weekend had been both fun and educational.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

COMPREHENSIVE READING

A Weekend in Cambridge

Why did Sophie and Ethan go to Cambridge?

What activity did they do on the river?

Where did they go on Sunday?

Listen to what Sophie and Ethan's parents say about the trip and answer the question:

What is the parents' opinion about the trip?

LIVEWORKSHEETS