

Example: It goes without saying, software developers have to be logical and attentive-to-detail, because they write and debug complex code.