Baby teeth, also _____ as 'milk' teeth, start to grow before we are born and will start to fall out when we are 5 or 6 years old. In the UK, that's when the tooth fairy will come to collect them, in Spain and Latin America it's Perez the Mouse! The outside of our new, adult teeth, 'enamel' (эмаль), is the hardest part of our body. However, _____ with our bones, which can repair themselves over time, damage to enamel is permanent and is usually the _____ for a visit to the dentist. So, taking _____ of our 32 adult teeth is a serious business.

The relationship between birds and human beings goes back a very long way - in fact, for thousands of years. Birds have always _____ us with food, but people have only been _____ in bird-watching since the late 1700s. In the following century, the study of birds became popular, although in those days it really only _____ collecting birds' eggs. Rich collectors often _____ use of their contacts in other countries, asking for eggs and birds to be sent to them. Towards the end of the century, people began to realise that birds needed protection.

A true robot is any machine that can move about and do different jobs without human help. The word 'robot' was originally used to describe factory workers, and that is just what the majority of actual robots are. However, robots work without having a _____ . This makes them _____ at doing boring or dangerous jobs. Although they have not yet replaced human workers, robots have made factories much more efficient. Children are often _____ on robot toys. One robot called Aibo can sleep and play. It first went on _____ in 1999 in Japan. Since then it has become cheaper to buy and more reliable. The latest models can do a large number of different things. They can even recognise their owner's face.

LIVEWORKSHEETS