What do teenagers need? Perhaps the most important thing is enough sleep. Between the ages of 13 and 19, our brains and bodies change a lot. Sleep helps those changes to happen, so teenagers need more sleep than 12-year-olds. Teens sometimes sleep for 11 or 12 hours on the weekend, but scientists say about nine hours is the correct amount, up from about eight hours at a younger age.

Unfortunately, teenagers cannot normally go to sleep before 11 p.m. because of the changes in their bodies. In most countries, they then have to get up most of the year at 6.00 or 7.00 to be in time for school. It would be better if high schools in countries around the world started at 11.00 or 12.00, but they do not, so parents must find other ways to make sure their teenagers get enough sleep.

Firstly, teenagers could sleep for half an hour as soon as they get home or after dinner. This is better than letting them sleep late on the weekend. If a teenager wakes up at a later time on two days a week, it will be much harder to go back to the earlier time on school days.

Secondly, teenagers should not use laptops or cell phones late in the evening for games or social media. The light from these devices makes it harder for the body to feel tired.
