

Marsupials are mammals whose babies are born in a much undeveloped state. Some marsupials have a pouch on their bodies, in which they keep their babies till they are well developed.

Name the following marsupials. You can use the Help Line.

It is one of the few mammals that has fingerprints.

This animal's baby is called a joey.

It has a pointed nose.

It is a small gliding marsupial capable of gliding up to 50 meters.

It has a grasping tail which is hairless at the tip.

When attacked, it pretends to be dead, remains still, does not blink, and hangs its tongue out.

It is extinct on the mainland but still widespread in Tasmania, Australia.

It has a backward-facing pouch so that dirt doesn't enter that.

HELP LINE

Koala, Ringtail Possum,
Eastern Quoll, Bandicoot
Virginia opossum,
Sugar Glider, Kangaro,
Wombat