In 2019, Santiago Uribe, an audiovisual producer from Ecuador, won first place in the Drone Focus Film Festival in North Dakota (United States) for the second year in a row. A drone is a small flying machine that is operated by remote control. In this case, the drone records the images while flying over landscapes. The title of his short film was "Galapagos: The Enchanted Islands" and it showed several breathtaking images of the Galapagos Islands. The same year he won second place in an International Festival of Arts and Tourism in the Ukraine. The filming of the short movie took one week and the editing took three weeks. It had a price tag of approximately $20,000. In 2018, he had won the Festival in Miami with the film "Mindo: A Hidden Paradise", where he captured the unique landscapes of the cloud forest in Mindo.

Uribe studied digital and multimedia engineering at Indoamerica University in Quito, Ecuador. Now he is a professor at the same university. He has been working with drone movies since 2016 when he bought his first equipment. He took a course to learn how to operate it, but Uribe says that he has learned the most from experience. Since then he has won recognition in festivals around the world, including in Australia, Brazil, Germany, and the United States. Certainly this is just the beginning of a tremendous career.
