The whodunit game

Have you ever heard of the Whodunit game? I.....(not hear) of it until last summer when I was working at a camp. One night, the camp director,

Gina, told us about Whodunit, a game to help us know each other better. As soon as Gina.....(explain) the game, each participant(write) down something about his or her life. Then, Gina mixed the cards and gave one to each participant. After each person.....(read) the card, they.....(try) to guess who had written it. Ryan read my card: By the time I was ten years old, I(travel) on an aeroplane 12 times. Most people there didn't know that my dad.....(work) in the military for many years before he.....(retired). After Ryan.....(guess) wrong five times, I finally announced the card was mine. My friends were surprised! Until we played the game, I.....(not know) much about the other participants. We didn't solve crimes, but Whodunit was a great game for us to learn more about each other's mysteries.
