The Legend of Lake Toba

Once upon a time, lived a man named Toba. One day, he caught a fish and brought it home to eat it. He left the fish in the kitchen and searched for some firewood. After he came back, he was surprised.

The fish turned into a beautiful woman. Toba fell in love, then asked the woman to marry him. She agreed, in one condition. Toba must never tell anyone that she was once a fish. Toba promised, and they both happily married with a son, Samosir.

One day, Toba was very angry at Samosir at the farm. "Why did you eat my lunch? You son of a fish!" Said Toba. Samosir cried and then ran to his home. He told his mother what happened. The mother was sad, because Toba broke his promise. Then, she told Samosir to go to a hill, because a disaster was about to come.

Suddenly, there was a flood coming, turning the place into a lake. The woman jumped into the water and turned into a fish. Samosir was saved on the hill. But his father, Toba drowned in the lake. After that, people started to call the place as Toba Lake, and they called the island in the middle of the lake as Samosir Island.
