

Part I (2.5 marks) (CLO1): LẤY TRONG SÁCH. PARAPHRASE LAI
Listen TWICE to the talks and fill in each gap with NO MORE THAN THREE WORDS AND / OR A NUMBER.

Let's start at the beginning. Greetings - I mean, (1) _____ to someone. When you meet someone for the first time, you can say 'Pleased to meet you' or 'How do you do?'. Some English people just say 'Hi' or 'Hello'. All of these are fine. Secondly, be careful when you (2) _____ people. You can't use (3) _____ - I mean Mr, Mrs, Professor - with a first name, like Mr John, or Mrs Mary or Professor Michael. You must use the (4) _____ with a title - Mr Williams, Mrs Pearce, Professor Jones. By the way, you call most (5) _____ at a British university Mr or Mrs or Miss. We only use Doctor if he or she has a PhD. Oh, and Professor. In Britain, a Professor is usually the (6) _____ of department or faculty. Do not call all lecturers Professor. Handshakes - shaking hands. We do shake hands a lot in Britain but not with (7) _____, that is, people we work with or study with. So don't offer to shake hands with the other students every time you meet them.

What about (8) _____? I mean, looking at people. Perhaps, in your country, it is polite to look down when you are talking to an older person, or a person of the opposite sex. But not in Britain. Look people in the eye - your lecturers, the Professor, even the (9) _____. They will not think you are disrespectful.

The next thing is social distance - in other words, how close you should stand to people. In Britain, we stand about 60 centimetres away from colleagues - that's about arm's length. Next, gender equality. Gender means sex - male or female. So gender equality is the way we think about men and women in Britain. Basically, men and women are equal. You may have male lecturers, or female lecturers or a (10) _____, but they are all equal - same pay, same level in the university.

Finally, participation, which means taking part in something. Lecturers sometimes ask questions during a lecture and they expect you to answer. They sometimes ask for questions at the end of a lecture. It is good to ask questions if you are not sure about something. And of course, lecturers expect active participation in a tutorial.

Part II (2.5 marks) (CLO 1) LẤY TRONG SÁCH

Listen TWICE to the talks and decide if these statements are True (T) or False (F).

A. Employment

- 11. You must go to work every day because people depend on you. _____
- 12. You must respect your manager and your neighbours. _____
- 13. All the writing tasks that your manager gives you must be completed. _____
- 14. You should use the company phone to contact your friends. _____
- 15. It is compulsory to arrange your work files logically. _____

B. Scientific method

- 16. Scientists follow the scientific method to prove that something is true _____
- 17. An idea of the truth is called a hypothesis _____
- 18. Scientists can test a hypothesis in four main ways _____
- 19. Doing an experiment means looking up information _____
- 20. What you learn from an experiment are called conclusions _____
