Giving Directions

Tom is visiting a new town for the first time. He wants to find the supermarket to buy some food. Tom stops a woman on the street and asks for help.

The woman smiles and gives him directions. She says, "Go straight down this street for three blocks. When you see the traffic light, turn right. Walk past the school and the park. The supermarket is across from the bus stop, next to the pharmacy."

Tom listens carefully and thanks the woman. He walks straight and counts the blocks. He sees the traffic light and turns right. He walks past the school and the park. Soon, he sees the bus stop. The supermarket is across from it, just like the woman said.

Tom is happy because he finds the supermarket easily. He buys food and feels more confident walking around the town.
