Lily loves to travel and explore new places. She recently went to both the beach and the mountains and found that they were both fun in different ways.

When she went to the beach, Lily found it easier to play and more relaxed than in the mountains. She was more excited about swimming in the ocean and making sandcastles than exploring the hills. However, after playing under the sun for a long time, she became thirstier than she did in the mountains.

On the other hand, when she went to the mountains, Lily found it more difficult than going to the beach. She climbed a big peak, and it made her more tired than playing on the beach. She also found it more dangerous than the beach, but she was not frightened or afraid of the surroundings.

Overall, Lily found both the beach and the mountains to be exciting but in different ways. She realized that the mountains were more challenging and the beach was more relaxing.

1. Lily thought it was easier to play in the mountains than at the beach.
