

Meg : Hey, Todd. I know you've a lot. What countries have you in?

Todd : I've lived in three I've traveled to many, many countries. But I've lived in three. I lived in England for one year. I lived in Thailand for four years. And I have lived in Japan for years.

Meg : Wow. So when you lived in England, why did you live there?

Todd : It was the country I traveled to after And I had a work permit, a work for one year. And I worked at a pub, which was great. It was in the And I really enjoyed it. And then I did that for six I lived near Cambridge. So, I was near Cambridge University. And then after that I to London. And again, I worked at a restaurant. And I lived in London and just worked.

Meg : Wow. So it was after college. How were you?

Todd : I was 23 years old.

Meg : Oh, and living in London. That have been fun.

Todd : It was fun. And, when I went to England, I could not speak English. So, I could not British people. It took me maybe two months before I could understand their English. So it was very, very to understand British people when I first moved there.

Meg : Ah, so you liked it.

Todd : I did like England. It was fun. It was my first country. But the was cold for me. I'm from California, and California in the United States is very So I didn't like the weather. But that's okay because all British people don't like the weather, too.

Meg : Oh, really?

Todd : Yeah. Everybody about the weather.

Meg : So after England, did you move someplace?

Todd : I did. Right after England, I moved to Thailand. And I lived in Thailand for over four years.

Meg : Wow. Why did you live in Thailand?

Todd : I was traveling. And in Thailand I had no money and I needed a job. And I wanted to in Thailand, so I became an English teacher.

Meg : Really?

Todd : Yeah.

Meg : Did you English there for four years?

Todd : I did. So I went there and I began teaching English. Then I got a teaching course to teach English in Thailand, and I really enjoyed it. The Thai students were really fun. And Thailand is a great place to live because the weather is really nice. The people are really and the food is delicious. It has the best food in the world, I think.

Meg : I've also heard that Thailand is Is it true?

Todd : It is. It has many, many beautiful and it has lots of beautiful places with nature and the It has jungles. It has beautiful beaches. So it's a nice place to live.

Meg : So you like Thailand, too.

Todd : I did. Thailand was great. Yeah.

Meg : So England, Thailand, you said next was Japan?

Todd : Yeah, so next was Japan. And Japan is nice. I am a teacher, an English teacher in Japan and I love teaching English in Japan. Like Thailand, the food is really, really good. The people are nice. The is really beautiful. So Japan is really nice.

Meg : Are there fun things to do in Japan?

Todd : Yes. Actually, I like Japan the most because you get everything. You get lots of beautiful So, you can go hiking. You can go see beautiful beaches. You can go to really nice islands. But also Japan has many, many nice So you can go to Tokyo, Osaka, Fukuoka and the cities have lots to do. There's good shopping, great restaurants. It's easy to travel in Japan by and bus. So, it's really nice.

Meg : Oh, that sounds like the best of both worlds.

Todd : Yeah, it is. a good place to live.
