Roman Community Centres

Roman baths were big, fancy places where Romans went not only to get clean but also to hang out. They had different rooms with pools of hot, warm, and cold water. People would move from one room to another as part of their bath routine, and it was a social thing too. It didn't matter if you were rich or not - everyone could use the baths. Besides washing, people did exercises, got massages, and chatted with each other. These baths were more than just a place to scrub up; they were like community centres where Romans met, talked, and did business. So, Roman baths were not just about getting clean; they were a big deal in the social life of ancient Rome.

0. Why did Romans go to the Roman baths?

- A. To get clean
- B. To spend time with other people
- ☒ C. Both A and B

Makeup Invention

Ancient Egyptians were good at using makeup, and they did it for different reasons. Both guys and girls put on makeup every day because it was part of their culture and religion, and it looked nice too. They thought makeup could protect them from the strong sun and bad spirits. Egyptians especially liked using dark kohl around their eyes to keep the sun out and make their eyes stand out. The cool makeup styles of the Egyptians showed how creative and special their culture was, and even today, we can see how their makeup ideas still influence how we do things.

4. What is the text mainly about?
