Are your digital devices listening to you?

A Last week, something weird happened. I was telling a friend that I wanted to buy a skateboard. An hour later, I was on a social media site and I saw an advertisement for skateboards! I couldn't believe it! How did my phone know that I was looking for one? I decided to do some research, and I didn't like what I found ...

B Experts say that your phone can listen to you! Everything depends on the access which you've given to the apps on it. Do they have access to your microphone and camera? If they do, they'll be able to record your voice and to take pictures and videos of you. If you're lucky, your apps won't do this. But they might do – if you let them.

C If you don't like this situation, don't complain about the apps! You must do something so they can't spy on you. Always cover your web camera. Turn off your microphone when you're not using it. And check the permissions for all the apps on your phone.
