

May, might and could

 May, might and could are modal verbs. We use them to talk about things that are possible now or in the future.

He might win! He could become a famous sportsman.

There is no important difference between the use of these three modals.

It may rain. = It might rain. = It could rain.

We don't need to add an 's' to the third person form of modal verbs. We use them like this:

Affirmative	Negative
modal verb + base form	modal verb + not + base form
It might rain.	It might not rain.

We can also use may, might and could with the first conditional to talk about things that are possible in the future. If the first action happens, the second action is possible.

If you do lots of running, you could win the race.

Use will and won't about to talk about things that will be true in the future. If the first action happens, the second action will happen.

If you do lots of running, you will be very healthy.

1 Read the text and circle the modal verbs.

Hi! My name's Sally Megson. I'm 10 and I go to school, and my hobbies are drawing and painting. I think I'm quite good at art, and next year I may study art at a special art school. The school is a long way from my home so I might have to take the bus to get there. I could be better at art if I had more time to practise, and my art teacher says I may win an award for my drawings when I'm older. I might not win it this year, but things could be different next year!

Next year ...

Footballers have to work hard!

Ahmed plays football in England. Duncan Brown asked him some questions.

D: Ahmed, you've been playing football in England for five years.

Did you have to work hard to get there?

A: Yes, I did! It was very hard. I had to practise every day.

D: Do you still have to practise every day?

A: I don't have to play every day, but I have to stay healthy.

D: Yes, footballers have to be very strong. Do you have to eat special food?

A: I didn't have to eat special food when I was younger, but I do now. We have to eat lots of good, healthy food because we have to be strong and fast.

Have to

We use have to + base form to talk about something someone must do.

We have to eat healthy food. I had to practise every day.

We use subject + did/do + not + have to + base form to talk about something that isn't or wasn't necessary.

I don't have to play every day. I didn't have to eat special food when I was younger.

We make questions from do/did + subject + have to + base form. Short answers are in the same tense as the question.

Do you have to eat special food? Yes, we do. / No, we don't.

Did you have to work hard to get there? Yes, I did. / No, I didn't.

9 Write the words in the correct order to make sentences.
