PRE-LISTENING ACTIVITIES

1. The song uses a sports metaphor for dating. Considering this, answer the following questions:

- What does "training" usually mean?
- If someone says "Training season is over" in a relationship context, what do you think they mean?
- Brainstorm 3 things a person might be "tired of doing" in a bad relationship.

2. Your non-negotiables: You'll be writing a "job description" for the perfect partner. Complete the prompts with your ideas.

- They must be good at .....
- I expect them .....
- They should avoid.....
- I would love.....
- They need .....

3. What are your "pet peeves"?

REPEAT B and C

e. Circle the correct option.

Can you concrete/compete?
Now is your time
Run when you hear that whistle/bristle blow
Are you on my dream/team?
Or tuck/stuck on the sidelines waiting for someone to tell you to go?

For someone to tell you to go
You should know I

REPEAT B

'Cause training season's over (training season's over)

AFTER-LISTENING ACTIVITIES

1. The advice column: Imagine you are a relationships' coach and give Dua some advice on finding the correct partner. Include phrases like:

- You should avoid...
- It's important ...
- Don't let them...
- Try to look for...

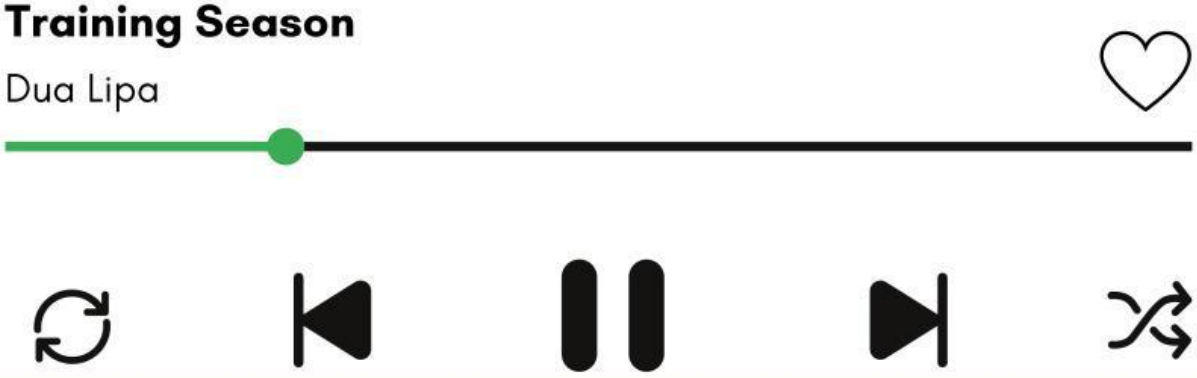

2. Green flags or red flags? Look at the following behaviours, would you consider them red or green flags?

- Refusing to listen.
- Keep checking their phone.
- Offering to pay the bill.
- Avoid making eye contact.
- Talking about an ex on the first date.
- Making compliments.

3. Let's focus on the vocabulary now... Go back to the song and find 3 new words/phrases. Can you understand their meaning? Check with a dictionary and use them in context.
