Save our Species!

Have you ever heard of the WWF? Well, the WWF stands for the World Wide Fund for Nature and it is a charity that protects wildlife around the world. A small group of people founded the charity in 1961. They chose a black and white panda as its logo. The idea for the logo came from a panda bear called Chi Chi which had arrived at the London zoo at the time. Thousands of people went to see this rare animal and Chi Chi inspired many of them to learn more about animals in danger. She was the perfect symbol for the new charity.

Fifty years later the WWF still has its famous logo and has become one of the biggest wildlife charities in the world. It has nearly 500 million members and operates in over 100 countries. The WWF still works hard to protect some of the world's rarest animals; jaguars, gorillas, turtles and pandas are just a few examples!

One of the ways people can help to protect endangered species through the WWF is by adopting an animal. There are over a hundred different species to adopt, including tigers, butterflies, bears and birds. People can choose the animal they want to adopt and then make a donation. In return the WWF will send them photographs, information and an adoption certificate. It's a great way to learn more about animals. The WWF will also send them a special bag with a cuddly toy replica of the adopted animal. Friends and family can also purchase a cuddly toy animal or they can adopt an animal for someone as a gift. If you'd like to learn more about the WWF, check out their website at www.wwf.org.

1. The WWF was started more than 60 years ago.
2. After visiting Chi Chi, people became more interested in endangered species.
3. After 50 years WWF changed its logo.
4. The WWF raises donations from special charity events.
5. The WWF works around the world.
6. There are four types of animals to adopt.
7. Adopting an animal is free.
8. A WWF adoption can be a present for a friend.

The World Buskers Festival.

Every January something exciting happens in New Zealand. For two weeks, hundreds of acrobats, comedians, dancers and musicians from all round the world come to perform in one of the country's main cities. A _____. They mostly perform in the streets.

Why? Because this is The World Buskers Festival.

A busker is anyone who performs an act for free in the street. B _____. But people only give what they think the act was worth. And buskers don't expect more than a few coins from each person. The World Buskers Festival is a great opportunity to see some of the world's best street performers. Visitors can watch magic acts in the streets and in the main square they can laugh at top comedy acts. In the park, they can see acrobats performing incredible feats high up in the trees! C _____.

At night, performances continue to take place in the city's art galleries and theatres. When the festival began in 1994, only a few buskers came to the city, and crowds were small. D _____. For the most popular acts, visitors need to arrive early to get a good view. One act that always draws a big crowd is New Zealand's Fuse Circus, a team of some of the country's best circus performers. Together, they put on an incredible acrobatic show! Another top act is a young comedian called Sam Wills. E _____.

There are also big audiences for Maui, a group who perform traditional Maori dances. With over 500 different performances taking place around the city, any visitor to this fantastic, free festival, is sure to find something they like!
