A04

FUTURE TIME

by Julian Conde

I. Write T (true) or F (false).

1. ____: You can use both be going to and will to express what you think will happen in the future.
2. ____: Be going to is the preferred form when talking about a future situation that is already planned.
3. ____: If you decide to do something at the exact moment you are speaking, you should use be going to.
4. ____: You can use be going to to make a prediction based on evidence you see right now (e.g., dark clouds in the sky).
5. ____: The present progressive (e.g., we are traveling) can be used for future actions that are already arranged.
6. ____: In a sentence with two future actions, you must use will or be going to in both the independent and the dependent clause.
7. ____: In a dependent clause starting with when or as soon as, the verb should be in the simple present, even if it refers to the future.
8. ____: The future perfect is used to describe an action that will be completed before a specific time in the future.
9. ____: The future perfect progressive (e.g., will have been traveling) is used to show that an action will be in progress before a certain time in the future.
10. ____: It is common to use the phrases by and by the time when using the future perfect.

II Choose the best answer.

1. I can't meet you on Wednesday because I _____ to New York for a conference. That's my plan.

- A) will fly
- B) am flying

2. We will start the meeting as soon as the manager _____.

- A) arrives
- B) will arrive

LIVEWORKSHEETS