A Underline the reduced non essential adjective clauses.

1. The scientist, who discovered it, spoke at the conference yesterday.
2. The business, which started last year, is doing really well.
3. Masi, who is determined to disrupt the market, has created a new brand of chocolate from camel's milk.
4. The newspaper, which published the article, has asked me to write another one.
5. Our brother, who lives in New Zealand, is coming to stay next week.
6. Zeina Al Mannai, who won the award, is going to give a talk about how she started her business.

B Rewrite the sentences by reducing the non-essential adjective clauses.

1. The startup, which was founded by two college students, revolutionized the tech industry.

2. The marketing campaign, which was developed by a creative agency, boosted sales significantly.

3. The business plan, which was drafted by innovative entrepreneurs, attracted numerous investors.

4. The new skyscraper, which was designed by a young engineer, has become a symbol of the country's progress.

5. The song, which was composed by Mozart, is still popular today.

6. The workshop, which was organized by a leading consultant, inspired attendees to think outside the box.

C Rewrite the sentences by reducing the non-essential adjective clauses.

1. Noora, who is an undergraduate pianist, will perform at the concert.

2. The building, which is a historic landmark, attracts many tourists.

3. Mr. Ahmed, who is the CFO of the company, announced the launch of a new project.

4. The painting, which is a masterpiece, was sold for a record price.

5. The committee, which is a group of experts, will review all the reports.

6. The laptop, which is a new model, has received excellent reviews.

D Underline the non-essential adjective clauses. Then rewrite the sentences with a reduced non-essential adjective clause.

1. The manager, who is leading the project, wants us to meet on Monday.

2. Google, which was started by Larry Page and Sergey Brin, is 25 years old.

3. The five new employees, who are starting on Monday, will attend our weekly meeting.

4. Tim Berners – Lee, who is credited with inventing the world wide web, believes AI will change our world.

5. The teachers, who were coming to the conference last week, couldn't come because their flight was cancelled.

6. The Bahrain Entrepreneurship Or[illegible] together.

LIVEWORKSHEETS