Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

A World in Your Pocket

Not long ago, calling a friend in another country meant waiting, planning, and spending a lot of money. Today, a teenager in a small Vietnamese village can video-call someone on the other side of the world in seconds, for free. Smartphones and the internet have made the world feel smaller and more connected than ever before. For young people, these tools are not just for entertainment. They use apps to study, find jobs, share their culture, and join online campaigns to protect the environment.

As communication becomes faster, new questions appear. Some people worry that face-to-face conversations are becoming less common, while others argue that people are simply connecting in different ways. Scientists are also exploring bigger possibilities. Could artificial intelligence revolutionise the way doctors and teachers do their work? Could technology one day help people living on different planets stay in touch? These ideas once sounded like science fiction, but many are already becoming real.

What is clear is that the future belongs to those who are ready for it. Young people today must learn to adapt quickly, think carefully, and use new tools wisely. Yet perhaps the most indispensable skill is not technical at all. It is knowing how to listen, how to care for others, and how to stay connected to the world around you. The phone in your pocket is full of possibility. What you do with it is still up to you.

Question 31: Which of the following is NOT mentioned as a way young people use smartphones and the internet?

A. To study and look for work
B. To share their culture with others
C. To create robots for school science fairs
D. To join online environmental campaigns

Question 32: The word "revolutionise" in the second paragraph is closest in meaning to _____.

A. simplify
B. improve
C. discover
D. transform

Question 33: The word "indispensable" in the third paragraph is OPPOSITE in meaning to _____.

A. unnecessary
B. complicated
C. professional
D. fundamental

Question 34: Which of the following is NOT true according to the passage?

A. Modern communication tools are utilized by the youth for more than just fun.

B. Some people are concerned about the decline of direct physical interactions.

C. Technological breakthroughs in medicine have already replaced human doctors.

D. Scientific concepts that once seemed impossible are now turning into reality.

Question 35: Why does the writer say the most important skill may not be technical?

A. Because future jobs will not require digital knowledge

B. Because caring and listening guide how tools are used

C. Because human qualities matter when using technology wisely

D. Because young people already know enough about machines

Question 36: Which of the following best expresses the main idea of the passage?

A. Technology gives young people many opportunities, but they must use it with wisdom and human care.

B. Young people should prepare for space communication because science fiction ideas are now becoming normal.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

C. Smartphones are the most effective way for teenagers to study, work, and protect the environment.

D. Face-to-face communication is disappearing, so schools should teach students more social skills soon.

Four phrases/sentences have been removed from the text below. For each question, mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct option that best fits each of the numbered blanks from 37 to 40.

In many cities today, environmental protection is no longer just a "nature" issue. It is (37) _____. For example, more young people join "low-waste" challenges on TikTok and Instagram, showing reusable cups, second-hand clothes, and simple meals. Supporters say these habits reduce trash and also make life less stressful. But others complain that some content is (38) _____, and it can create guilt for people who cannot afford eco-friendly products.

At the same time, AI and smart apps are becoming part of the discussion. Some apps help users track carbon footprints, while companies use AI to save energy in offices and factories. This sounds promising, yet it raises questions: Who controls the data? Are we(39) _____? Another hot topic is electric vehicles and delivery services. They may cut air pollution, but battery production and recycling are still difficult, and traffic in big cities keeps growing.

In my view, the best solution is a balanced one. Personal choices matter, but governments and (40) _____, and set clear rules. Environmental protection should be practical, fair, and long-term—not just a trend.

A. using more electricity because we are online all the time
B. businesses must improve public transport, support renewable energy
C. connected with lifestyle trends, technology, and even mental health
D. more about looking "green" than making real change

Question 37: _____. Question 38: _____. Question 39: _____. Question 40: _____.
