Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

Mai grew up in a small town in Phu Tho province, where mornings smelled like woodsmoke and the neighbors always knew each other's names. At eighteen, she moved to Hanoi for university. The city amazed her at first: the lights, the choices, the busy streets. But some nights, lying in her dormitory room with traffic outside, she found herself missing something she could not quite name. Not a place exactly, but a feeling. The slowness of Sunday mornings. The sound of rain on a tin roof. The way time felt different back home.

Mai's story is very common. Every year, many young Vietnamese people leave their hometowns for cities in search of better education and jobs. City life has real advantages: higher incomes, better hospitals, and opportunities that do not exist in rural areas. Yet many of these young people carry a quiet sense of displacement, a feeling of being caught between the world they came from and the world they are building. They belong to both places and, on some days, feel fully at home in neither.

Most people never fully solve this feeling. Some return to their hometowns after years in the city, bringing new skills with them. Others stay in the city but find small ways to stay connected: cooking their mother's recipes, calling home every Sunday, or growing herbs on a balcony. These habits may look trivial to others, but they serve a real purpose. They remind a person of who they are beneath all the noise of daily life. In that way, home is less a place you go back to and more a feeling you choose to keep.

Question 31: Which of the following is NOT mentioned as an advantage of city life in the passage?

- A. Better medical care for local people
- B. More chances for study and work
- C. Higher incomes than in rural areas
- D. Cleaner air and less traffic every day

Question 32: The word "displacement" in the second paragraph is closest in meaning to _____.

- A. excitement
- B. unsettlement
- C. development
- D. requirement

Question 33: The word "trivial" in the third paragraph is OPPOSITE in meaning to _____.

- A. simple
- B. boring
- C. significant
- D. creative

Question 34: According to the second paragraph, what is the main reason many young people move to cities?

- A. They want to avoid the slow lifestyle of rural provinces.
- B. They find the sense of displacement in their hometowns unbearable.
- C. They seek opportunities that are unavailable in their local areas.
- D. They aim to improve their living standards and career prospects.

Question 35: Why does the writer describe Mai missing Sunday mornings and rain on a tin roof?

- A. To show she dislikes life in Hanoi completely
- B. To explain that village weather is usually better

C. To suggest university life gives her too little sleep

D. To highlight the emotional side of missing home

Question 36: Which of the following best summarises the main content of the passage?

A. The struggle of young people to find well-paid jobs in the city.

B. The emotional conflict of youth living between hometown and city life.

C. The importance of maintaining a sense of home in a changing world.

D. The significant differences between rural life and modern city lifestyle.

Visions of the future often sound exciting in Vietnam: smart cities, fast internet, and more electronic devices in every home. Many people believe technology will help protect Planet Earth, for example by using apps to track electricity use or by building cleaner public transport. (37) _____. Phones, earbuds, and laptops become old very quickly, and not everyone knows (38) _____. Some users argue that buying the newest model is normal and motivates innovation, while others say it is a wasteful habit that harms our environment.

(39) _____. Environmental campaigns today spread through English on YouTube, global news, and international tourism. This helps local communities learn new ideas, such as responsible travel and protecting natural wonders. However, some people worry that English-only messages can exclude older residents or rural workers, so information should be shared in simple Vietnamese too.

In my view, the best future is not only “more modern” but also “more mindful.” We can keep (40) _____, yet set rules: longer product life, repair culture, and better recycling systems. Schools can guide career choices toward green jobs, like renewable energy, sustainable tourism, and environmental education. If our communities work together, development and protection can go side by side.

A. how to recycle them safely

B. the convenience of technology and tourism

C. World Englishes also play a role in this discussion

D. At the same time, a “hidden” problem is growing: e-waste
