Dear Lily,

I hope you're doing well! I've been thinking a lot about our conversation last week regarding shopping, and I wanted to share some thoughts with you.

To be honest, I'm getting really tired of the whole "fast fashion" industry. It feels like brands are pushing new collections every single week, and it's impossible to (17) _____ the latest trends. It's actually quite scary how much we buy and then (18) _____ away just a few months later. The impact on the environment is huge, not to mention the poor working (19) _____ in many garment factories.

Because of this, I've decided to (20) _____ an effort to change my habits. I'm trying to avoid buying cheap clothes from big chains. Instead, I'm looking for second-hand items or vintage pieces. It's actually fun hunting for (21) _____ clothes that nobody else has! Plus, clothes from the past seem to be made to last much longer than the stuff we buy today.

What do you think? Is it better to buy fewer, expensive items or stick (22) _____ affordable fashion but buy less often? I'd love to hear your opinion.

Let's catch up soon!

Best wishes,

Rachel

IV. Read the following leaflet about sports tourism. Decide whether the statements from 23 to 26 are True or False and choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D) to complete the statements in the questions 27 and 28. (1.5 pts)

Sports tourism refers to traveling from one region or country to another to either watch or actively participate in a sports-related activity. It seamlessly blends a passion for sports with the desire to explore new destinations and gain fresh experiences.

Although sports tourism was not always a mainstream trend, it is definitely on the rise. A recent report estimated the global market value at $587.87 billion in 2022, with the industry expected to expand by 17.5% through 2030. Major events like the Olympic Games, the NBA, and the FIFA World Cup have driven this growth. While these events bring immediate economic benefits, they also act as a catalyst for long-term tourism development.

In 2004, the World Tourism Organization (WTO) and the International Olympic Committee (IOC) highlighted the strong connection between the two sectors. They stated that "tourism and sports are interrelated and complementary." Whether for professional or leisure purposes, sports involve significant travel. Consequently, major tournaments have become powerful attractions in their own right, significantly boosting the image of the host destination.

23. A traveler who visits a different country solely to sit in the stadium and watch a football match does not qualify as a sports tourist according to the definition.
24. The text implies that sports tourism has maintained a consistently high level of popularity throughout history.
25. While major sporting events generate quick revenue, their impact on the host country's infrastructure and development is usually temporary.
26. The joint statement by the WTO and IOC suggests that the relationship between the tourism industry and the sports sector is mutually beneficial.
27. Which factor is identified as the primary driver for the projected expansion of the sports tourism market through 2030?
- A. The increasing number of amateur athletes traveling for leisure.
  - B. The sustained influence and appeal of major international competitions.
  - C. The immediate financial profits that host countries receive.
  - D. The reduction in travel costs between different regions.
28. In the final paragraph, what does the phrase "attractions in their own right" imply about major sporting events?
- A. They are now becoming more important than the tourism board of the host country.
  - B. They are dependent on the host country's existing tourist spots to be successful.
  - C. They have become primary reasons for travel, regardless of the destination's other features.
  - D. They are only attractive to professional athletes, not regular tourists.
