

Punctuation Marks

A period is a punctuation mark used at the end of a sentence to show that the thought is complete. It helps the reader understand when to stop and take a pause.

A comma is a punctuation mark that helps make sentences clear. It separates ideas, lists things, and adds little pauses when we read.

A question mark is a punctuation mark that goes at the end of a question. It helps us know when someone is asking something.

An exclamation mark shows strong emotion, excitement, or urgency. It adds emphasis to a sentence.

quotation marks is to set off and represent exact language (either spoken or written) that has come from somebody else. The quotation mark is also used to designate speech acts in fiction and sometimes poetry.