The sanctuary festival

Last summer, the animal sanctuary near my home organised an open-air festival at the park. The sanctuary said they wanted to make money for the animals. The organisers told everyone to wear endangered animal costumes. I was really excited about it. My costume was a panda, with black and white fur, and big paws. There were people dressed up as lions and tigers, monkeys and bears. Some of the costumes were hilarious. The festival was crowded. There was music and face-painting and acrobats. My friend said she was busy so she didn't go. She said she would have worn a chameleon costume if she had gone. After the festival, the organisers said they had made two thousand pounds for the sanctuary, and that it was an enormous amount of money.
