

EXERCISE 1 - LISTENING AND READING COMPREHENSION,

Teenagers and Video Games

Tom is thirteen years old and loves video games. Every afternoon, he finishes his homework before playing online. He usually plays with his best friend Daniel from Canada. They speak in English while they play and learn new words.

Tom's parents think video games can be educational. Tom learns strategy, teamwork, and communication skills. Sometimes he watches tutorials to understand difficult games better. He also reads articles about technology and game design.

Right now, Tom and his sister are building a small robot. They are using recycled materials from their school project. Their teacher is helping them understand how machines work. Tom feels excited because he wants to become an engineer.

On weekends, Tom and his friends ride their bikes in the park. They bring snacks, drinks, and sports equipment together. After playing outside, they often eat hamburgers at a café. Tom thinks balance between games and exercise is important.
