

Score:

Small talk is a casual, light conversation people use to start a chat, show friendliness, and make others feel comfortable. It helps people socialize, bond, and enjoy each other's company, especially during chill moments like get-togethers, parties, or when catching up with friends. Small talk is also a great way to reconnect or relax while hanging out. People use small talk to break the ice and build or maintain friendships. It often includes fun, easy topics like hobbies, weekend plans, weather, entertainment (movies, books), pets, or shared experiences.

Examples of small talk:

- "Did you do anything fun over the weekend?"
- "This weather has been crazy lately, hasn't it?"
- "Have you watched any good shows lately?"
- "Your dog is so cute—what's his name?"
- "I heard you play guitar. That's so cool!"
- "It's great to catch up—feels like it's been forever!"

Small talk is light and friendly — it does not include deep or personal conversations, controversial topics, arguments, or criticism. These kinds of talks usually happen later when people know each other better. These quick chats, full of jokes, laughter, or even a little banter, help people feel at ease and enjoy being together. Whether you're meeting someone new or reconnecting with an old friend, small talk is a simple, friendly way to share a moment and strengthen your social connections.

1. What is small talk?
 - A. A formal type of discussion used in meetings and presentations
 - B. A casual, light conversation used to start chats and make people feel comfortable
 - C. A serious conversation about personal problems and life decisions
 - D. A structured debate used to argue different opinions in detail
2. When do people usually use small talk?
 - A. Only during job interviews and formal presentations
 - B. When they need to solve serious conflicts or disagreements
 - C. During arguments or when discussing sensitive topics
 - D. During casual moments like meetups, parties, or when catching up with friends
3. Why do people use small talk in social situations?
 - A. To avoid talking to others for too long
 - B. To break the ice, be friendly, and start or maintain relationships
 - C. To discuss complex problems in detail
 - D. To compete and prove their opinions are correct
4. What are some common topics in small talk?
 - A. Political debates, financial issues, and global conflicts
 - B. Personal secrets, family problems, and serious life choices
 - C. Hobbies, weather, entertainment, pets, and weekend plans
 - D. Work deadlines, exams, and professional evaluations
5. How does small talk help people feel in social situations?
 - A. It makes people feel nervous and uncertain
 - B. It helps people feel at ease, relaxed, and comfortable
 - C. It creates pressure to share personal problems
 - D. It forces people to speak only about serious topics
6. Give two examples of small talk from the text.
 - A. "Did you do anything fun over the weekend?" / "Have you watched any good shows lately?"
 - B. "We need to discuss your performance at work" / "This is a serious issue"
 - C. "You must explain your decision immediately" / "I disagree strongly with you"
 - D. "This situation is unacceptable" / "We need a formal agreement"
7. What are some social situations where small talk might happen?
 - A. Job interviews, court hearings, and official complaints
 - B. Only during emergency situations
 - C. During arguments or negotiations
 - D. Get-togethers, parties, and casual meetups with friends
8. What types of conversations do NOT count as small talk? Give examples.
 - A. Casual chats about hobbies and weekend plans
 - B. Light conversations about pets and entertainment
 - C. Deep personal talks, arguments, and controversial topics
 - D. Friendly greetings and simple catch-up conversations
9. Why are deep or personal conversations not considered small talk?
 - A. Because they are too short and simple
 - B. Because they usually involve serious, personal, or sensitive topics
 - C. Because they are always informal and light
 - D. Because they happen only between strangers
10. How can small talk help you reconnect with someone?
 - A. By avoiding any conversation topics completely
 - B. By discussing only work-related issues
 - C. By immediately talking about serious conflicts
 - D. By breaking the ice and gently restarting friendly communication
11. Why is small talk important for making or keeping friends?
 - A. Because it replaces deep conversations completely
 - B. Because it allows people to avoid each other
 - C. Because it helps build comfort, connection, and friendship over time
 - D. Because it is required in all formal situations