Emma: Hey Daniel! It's been a long time. How have you been?
Daniel: Hi Emma! I've been pretty good, just busy with work lately. What about you?
Emma: Same here. I really need to relax this weekend. We should hang out sometime.
Daniel: Definitely! It would be nice to catch up and reconnect. I miss our old conversations.
Emma: Me too. Remember when we used to chill at the café after class and just chat for hours?
Daniel: Yeah! We always had so much fun together. Your jokes were terrible, though.
Emma: Excuse me? My jokes were amazing! That friendly banter is exactly what made our friendship stronger.
Daniel: True, true. We always laughed a lot. By the way, are you doing anything on Saturday?
Emma: Not really. Why?
Daniel: A few friends want to get together at my house. Nothing too big, just a small gathering to socialize, play music, and maybe watch a movie.
Emma: That sounds great! I'd love to come. Who else is going?
Daniel: Sofia, Marco, and Elena. You know them all. Sofia recently came back from Spain, so we also want to celebrate her return.
Emma: Oh nice! I haven't seen Sofia in ages. I'd really like to share stories with her and hear about her trip.
Daniel: She probably has a lot of interesting experiences to talk about.
Emma: Speaking of trips, I actually traveled to the mountains last month with my cousins. We got lost while hiking!
Daniel: Seriously? What happened?
Emma: Well, we thought Marco had the map, but he left it in the car. At first, everyone blamed me.
Daniel: Oh no! That must have been stressful.
Emma: It was, but in the end we laughed about it. Luckily, a local farmer helped us find the right path.
Daniel: That's a good story! See? This is why I enjoy your company. You always have funny experiences to share.
Emma: Thanks! So, what time is the party on Saturday?
Daniel: Around 7 p.m. We can order pizza and just enjoy the evening.
Emma: Perfect. Should I bring anything?
Daniel: Maybe some snacks. Oh, and your sense of humor.
Emma: Wow, now you suddenly appreciate my jokes?
Daniel: Well... sometimes.
(Both laugh.)
Emma: By the way, do you think Elena will come? Last time she said she was too tired for parties.
Daniel: Yeah, but I talked to her yesterday. She said she needs to bond with friends more because she's been feeling lonely lately.
Emma: That's understandable. I think spending time with good friends really helps.
Daniel: I agree. Sometimes people just need support and a chance to talk.
Emma: Exactly. We should make sure she feels included.
Daniel: Absolutely. Oh, and before I forget, Marco wants to invite some coworkers too. Is that okay with you?
Emma: Sure, although I prefer smaller groups. But it could be interesting to meet new people.
Daniel: That's what I thought. If it gets too crowded, we can always sit outside and chill.
Emma: Sounds like a plan. I'm really looking forward to it now.
Daniel: Me too. It'll be nice to gather everyone again after such a long time.
Emma: Agreed. Good friends, good food, and lots of laughter — what more do we need?
Daniel: Exactly! See you Saturday.
Emma: See you! Don't forget to send me the address.
