A Spend, spend, spend!

Paris, London, Milan, New York. These are the cities that hold the most important fashion shows in the world. The designers who show their collections there are the most successful. You know their names: Versace, Prada, Dolce and Gabbana, Armani, Chanel, Dior, Taylor. Taylor? Who's that?

Isabella Rose Taylor presented her first collection at New York Fashion Week in 2014 ... at the age of 13. That's very impressive and so are her clothes. In addition to New York Fashion Week, Isabella also designs clothes for teenage girls for a famous American department store, Nordstrom. When the managers at the department store saw her designs, they knew they could sell them. One said, 'She is the same age as the customer and she understands what teen girls want to wear. Her fashions are a big hit in our store.'

C Shopping centres: FAQs

Did you know ...?

- There aren't many places to sit in the common areas of shopping centres. People can't shop when they're sitting. So when you want to sit, you have to go to a café and spend money there.
- The escalators that go up and down to different floors are in places where shoppers have to pass the maximum number of shops.
- It isn't easy to find the exits in shopping centres. This way, shoppers cannot leave quickly and so they spend more money.
- Slow music in shopping centres makes people shop more slowly and spend more. Loud fast music makes them hurry.
