Answer key

1 C

The core safety rule is to stay in one place; this prevents getting further lost and makes it easier for a parent to return to that spot.

2 A, B, C, D

According to safety procedures, a child needs to provide their name, parent's name, parent's phone number in English, and a description of the parent's appearance (including clothing) so the helper can locate the parent.

3 False

Running around makes it harder for the parent to find the child and increases the risk of getting even more lost. The rule is to stay in one place.

4 True

This is the basic definition used in stranger danger education. Anyone that the child has not met before is a stranger.

5 False

The correct response is a firm 'No, thank you' and staying in the safety spot. Accepting the offer could lead to danger.

6 No, thank you!

This firm reply is the standard safety phrase to decline offers from strangers while remaining polite.

7 I don't know you.

Asserting 'I don't know you' reinforces boundaries and reminds the stranger that the child is not to be approached.

8 Hair

Describing the parent's hair or current clothing helps identify them in a crowd.

9 1 → A stay
2 → B run
3 → A security

Staying still avoids getting further lost. Security guards in uniform are safe helpers.

10 1 → B No
2 → A know
3 → B safety spot

The correct response is 'No, thank you' and 'I don't know you', while remaining in a safe location.

11 B

Safety guidelines specify describing the parent's hair (or physical appearance) and current clothing.

12 B

The child should not trust the stranger's claim; instead they should refuse and remain in their safety spot.

13 B

Staying put increases the chances that the parent will find the child by retracing steps.

14 False

The essential information includes name, parent's name, parent's phone number, and description of parent, but not the child's home address.

15 False

The child should not engage; they should use firm refusals and boundary statements.

16 Stand still / stay in one place.

This is the foundational rule to avoid getting further lost.

17 Security guard uniform.

Security guards are identifiable by their uniform and are designated helpers.

18 1 → A phone

2 → A wearing

Phone number in English and description of clothing and hair are key details.

19 B

Strangers may lie; the child should not trust any claim and should stick to the safety response.

20 C

The required information includes name, parent's name, phone number, and description, not email.
