READING TEXT: TAMBURELLO

Tamburello is a sport from the north of Italy. It is a very old sport. The first games were in the 16th century. Players can play the game inside or outside.

It is a team sport and there are usually three players in each team. Players hit the small tennis ball to players in the other team. However, they do not use bats or rackets to hit the ball. They use tambourines. The Italian word for tambourine is tamburello. That is how the sport gets its name.

A player in one team hits the ball over the line to players in the other team. A player in the other team hits it back. When a player does not hit the ball or when the ball goes too far, the other team wins a point. There are four points in each game, just like in tennis. A match usually has 13 games.
