Exploring Coral Reefs

Snorkelling in the ocean is one of the most brilliant experiences that tourists can have. It allows them to explore the seabed and see the beautiful underwater world. Last week, Marcus and his classmates took an excursion to a famous marine park. The area is famous for its large coral reef, which is rich in marine flora and fauna. To ensure safety, a professional instructor guided the group. He taught them how to use the snorkelling equipment and float on the water. While some students felt nervous at first, the instructor's clear advice helped them gain confidence and enjoy the activity.

For Marcus, seeing the coral reef was unforgettable. He has never seen such a magnificent natural structure before. The water was very clear, and he could see colourful fish swimming among the corals. He also took many photos with a waterproof camera. He and his friends had a very enjoyable time exploring the seabed together. Marcus believes that protecting these coral reefs from pollution is very important. If we do not safeguard them, this beautiful marine life will suffer damage and disappear. The experience made the students value nature much more.
