

The Magical Birthday Party on Monday

Last week was full of surprises for everyone in town. Yesterday was/were/wasn't/weren't Monday, and the weather was beautiful. At 4:00 PM, I was/were/wasn't/weren't at school studying math because I was celebrating at a fantastic birthday party in the park! All my classmates was/were/wasn't/weren't very happy playing games and eating delicious chocolate cake.

The birthday boy was/were/wasn't/weren't smiling all the time because his presents were awesome. Later, at 6:00 PM, there was/were/wasn't/weren't a big colorful parade in the main street with music and clowns. My brother and I was/were/wasn't/weren't bored at all during the long celebration! It was truly an amazing day.

The Mysterious Flight at the Airport

In January, my family decided to go on a big vacation across the ocean. We was/were/wasn't/weren't at the airport for a long time waiting for our heavy suitcases. My favorite uncle was/were/wasn't/weren't the pilot of our huge blue plane, which was very cool! A friendly nurse was/were/wasn't/weren't there to help people with medicine, but she helped us find our gate.

Two tall police officers was/were/wasn't/weren't standing near the big glass windows watching the airplanes. They was/were/wasn't/weren't mad at the noisy children; they were very polite and smiled. After the long wait, I was/were/wasn't/weren't tired but extremely excited to fly.

The Saturday Barbecue and the Hungry Cousins

Last Saturday was/were/wasn't/weren't a perfect sunny day for cooking outdoor food. My whole family :was/were/wasn't/weren't outside in the backyard preparing a delicious barbecue with burgers and corn. The food was/were/wasn't/weren't ready until 2:00 PM because the fire was very slow. My little cousins was/were/wasn't/weren't very hungry and a bit sad because they wanted to eat immediately.

Luckily, I was/were/wasn't/weren't at the quiet library doing homework; I was right there next to the grill! It was/were/wasn't/weren't a spectacular weekend with my favorite people.

The June Wedding and the Boring Supermarket

In June, the weather changed and there was/were/wasn't/weren't a beautiful wedding in a big flower garden. The elegant bride and the groom was/were/wasn't/weren't so happy and danced together for hours. At 6:00 PM, my parents was/were/wasn't/weren't at the dance floor anymore because we needed to leave. They was/were/wasn't/weren't at the local supermarket buying some extra snacks for the drive home.

I was/were/wasn't/weren't a little bored during the long shopping trip, but at least the weather was/were/wasn't/weren't warm and nice outside.

A Weird Picnic in the Park

On Sunday, we packed our favorite sandwiches and was/were/wasn't/weren't at the park enjoying a sunny picnic. Suddenly, a very famous wrestler was/were/wasn't/weren't there on the grass practicing his crazy gym moves! His two big dogs was/were/wasn't/weren't running all around our picnic blanket trying to steal our food. A local vet was/were/wasn't/weren't also there enjoying her day off and checking the active puppies. .

The park was/were/wasn't/weren't quiet at all after all that chaos! We was/were/wasn't/weren't completely shocked by the adventure but we felt very happy

Old Village Tales by the River

Many years ago, our neighborhood looked completely different. A very famous writer was/were/wasn't/weren't living in a small wooden house down our street. A hard-working farmer choose:was/were/wasn't/weren't his enemy; he was actually his best friend and gave him fresh milk. Two old fishermen was/were/wasn't/weren't down by the deep river at 5:00 AM every single morning with their fishing rods.

They choose:was/were/wasn't/weren't sad about the freezing winter weather because they loved the water. The beautiful silver fish was/were/wasn't/weren't jumping high in the air all day long! Life was/were/wasn't/weren't simple and peaceful back then.
